SKULL CRUSHER ATTACKS GIRLS

WALLY BROWN AND KU-KLUX WARNING

Handsome Malden soda jerker blames jealous male friends of his fair patrons for the K. K. K. note ordering him to leave town. He says they're sore on him because he's a regular Valentino. He refuses to quit town—but he's done with the girls!

If Rodolfo Valentino is a sheik, Wally Brown of Malden is a caliph.

For months his soda fountain in a Malden drugstore has been an informal harem; he jerked sighs from the young women patrons as he jerked sodas from his fountain. Wally is as blonde as his egg shakes, as mellifluent as his banana royals and as smooth as his cupid sundaes.

The girls drank more soda than was good for them, just to be able to bask in his affable smile and listen to his tender comment.

All proceeded splendidly at Wally's fountain of youth until he received a communique signed by the Triple K.

The warning to leave town has frightened the Sheik of Malden. He admits it.

"But I won't be double-crossed by

MANY DEAD IN NEW ITALIAN CLASH

London, Jan. 24.—Many persons have been killed and wounded in violent fighting between Italian Fascisti and Socialists in several Italian cities, said a Rome dispatch to the Evening News this afternoon.

The trouble began when the Fascisti began to levy reprisals for the murder of a member.

Three were killed, nine wounded in Spezia. One was killed and several wounded at Bari. Fourteen were wounded, some fatally, at Syracuse.

HAUL DOWN U. S. FLAG ON RHINE

American Troops Start From Coblenz for Antwerp on Way Home

Berlin, Jan. 24.—After a twenty-four hour protest strike the workers in the Thyssen and Stinnes mines in the Ruhr resumed work today "in order to continue the production of coal for unoccupied Germany," it was announced here.

Ehrenbreitstein, Jan. 24.—(By the Associated Press).—The American troops were withdrawn from the Rhine today, ending American military participation in the occupation area.

The withdrawal was signalized by the hauling down at noon of the Stars and Stripes from the castle of Ehrenbreitstein, which has been the American military headquarters since the beginning of the occupation. Meanwhile the first trains with members of the Expeditionary Force were leaving Coblenz for Antwerp to board the transport St. Mihiel which will take them back to the United States.

BANDITS GAG, ROB VICTIM

East Cambridge Woman Left Tied in Kitchen by Gang That Flees With $355

Jerry Gervone, Cambridge baker, on his morning rounds, opened the kitchen door of Mrs. Carmeline Disicone's apartment on the ground floor at No. 47 Seventh street, East Cambridge, at 9 o'clock today.

He gasped at what he saw.

Trussed to a kitchen chair, about three feet from the stove, was a woman, masked, gagged and even with her long braids knotted to the back of the chair.

The woman was Mrs. Disicone, who had been overpowered, bound and robbed of $355 and a $125 diamond ring by three bandits.

All the men wore masks.

POSED AS GAS MAN.

Gervone released Mrs. Disicone and telephoned the police. With hysterical sobs the woman was able to give a more or less coherent account of the hold-up.

Mrs. Disicone, who is thirty-eight years old, is the wife of Nicholas Disicone and mother of three children, Frank, fifteen; Carl, thirteen, and Josephine, twelve. The husband was at work; the children in school.

At 8:30, while Mrs. Disicone was clearing up after breakfast, a young man entered. He said he was a gas inspector. But he did mighty little inspecting.

He peered around the kitchen a bit, asked a question or two, but did not even bother to look at the gas meter in the back hall.

RETURNS WITH PALS.

He was the "scout" sent ahead to see if the woman was alone and unprotected in the house.

The other two in the gang of three must have been hanging around nearby, because the first one

Aghast When Caught With Rum After Inviting Raid

New York, Jan. 24.—The police steam launch Bluehoy was cruising Gravesend Bay early today when the hail came:

"Hello there! Is that the police boat in search of rum runners?"

"Sure," responded Sergeant Neil Gibbons.

"Well, this is the motor boy K 5638 and we're bored to death. Can you do something to liven things up?"

"We can come aboard and search your craft," answered Gibbons, jokingly. John Walsh and Eugene Rucco, manning the dory, gladly assented.

"In the bow of their craft Gibbons found five cases of the finest Scotch. Walsh and Rucco stared.

"Now I wonder how that stuff got there?" they cried in chorus.

Though neither would take a receipt for the liquor, which was seized, both were held on a rum-running charge.

CONVEY SIEGEL BUILDING; VETS MUST MOVE

The old Siegel Building and land at Washington and Essex streets, which houses the United States Veterans' Bureau, has been conveyed to trustees of the Washington-Essex Real Estate Trust by the John Hancock Life Insurance Company, and the Harvard College Corporation.

The property, occupying the block bounded by Essex and Washington streets, Harrison avenue and Hayward place, has an assessed value of $4,100,000. It consists of 48,898 square feet of land and a seven-story fireproof building.

Recent rumors had it that the Veterans' Bureau would move to the Army Base. Extensive alterations, to cost $750,000, are planned by the new owners. The transfer was made through Sleeper & Dunlop.

THE WEATHER

NEWPORT HOMES ARE GUARDED

Newport, R. I., Jan. 24.—A terror as stark as that inspired by the fabled murders of the Rue Morgue grips this city as armed guards patrol the estates of the wealthy.

There is at large a monomaniacal slayer whose grim solution of the servant problem seems to be to kill off all servants.

Investigating the brutal killings of J. A. Fraser McLeish and his pretty wife early last Sunday morning, the police discovered another victim of Newport's skull-crushing fiend.

She is Miss Isabel Lattimer, housemaid, employed by Marion Eppley of New York in his beautiful manor here.

In addition the police have learned of two other attacks on servants.

Armed guards today are patrolling estates of the wealthy against a possible return of the fiend.

All crimes seem to have been committed by the same person.

The Lattimer girl survived her attack. In the two other cases the assassin's bullets missed.

SKULL BROKEN.

Just before the dawn of day in August last, when the seashore season of society was at its height, an arm reached through the window of a maidservant's room in the Eppley mansion and mashed the skull of Isabel Lattimer.

For nearly six months news of the atrocious attack was withheld from the police.

The authorities declare that "the servant problem" was the considera-

HARDING IS KEPT INDOORS BY STORM

Washington, Jan. 24.—(By International News Service)—Inclement weather kept President Harding close to his study today. An all-night snow which later turned to rain caused continued postponement of all engagements and upon the advice of Dr. C. E. Sawyer, his physicians, again prevented the President's return to his desk in the executive offices. Practically all trace of his attack of the grip has now gone. This illness, however, emphasized the need of rest from the arduous duties which have kept Mr. Harding close to his desk since last June.

FOUR KILLED IN IRISH FIGHT

Dublin, Jan. 24.—Republican irregulars raided Castlehan today, attacking the barracks, burning down the railway station and blowing up a bridge. Free State troops were rushed up and fighting ensued in which there were four casualties. A railway engineer was killed and and another wounded while fighting off a band of armed train wreckers at Tralee.

DRY VIOLATORS EAT WAY TO LIBERTY

St. Louis, Jan. 24.—Finding the appetites of two prisoners in jail at University City, St. Louis County, fast increasing the indebtedness of the town, Police Justice Ladd reduced their fines from $750 to $200, which they were able to pay and the men were at liberty today. The prisoners, Otto Dix, a saloonkeeper and his bartender, Harry Bischer, were charged with violation of the town's dry law.

FIVE ATTACKS OF SLAYING FIEND REVEALED IN NEWPORT

ASSAULT ON SERVANT CONCEALED MONTHS

tion which prompted the private's verdict "accidental" to be used as an explanation for the attack which was murderous in nature and nearly caused a death.

The authorities declare that if the finding of the servant propped in bed, her eyes glassy in coma, and blood gushing like a geyser from her head had been made public an exodus of the most previous possessions of scores of millionaires—their servants—would have ensued.

For that reason, the authorities intimate, the attack became "accidental." A servant had been shocked by defective wiring! She had fallen against a radiator and was injured! That was what Newport heard. The reign of terror in the Fifth Avenues, in the kitchens, in the servants' hall was averted.

Newspaper outbreak on August 8 last, when Marion Eppley, Lieutenant Commander Eppley of war times—and wife, a guest or two and the entire complement of a score or more of servants employed in the Eppley massive residence "Beacon Hill" adjoining the estate of Mr. and Mrs. Paul FitzSimons, were awakened from sleep by a piercing shriek. They rushed to the room occupied by Isabel Lattimer. They saw the girl in a bed of white and red. The white covers were running with her blood. She was propped on pillows in an unnatural posture. Nearby was an open window. Six feet below a Gothic colonade, accessible from the slope of a bank. She was ordered to the Newport Hospital by a physician called by the millionaire owners of the estate.

SKULL CRUSHED.

At the hospital it was discovered that a terrific blow had sunk part of her skull two inches toward the brain. A round piece of bone, nearly as large as a quarter, had been chipped from the skull. An immediate operation saved her life. The operation was performed by Dr. Charles W. Stewart, associate medical examiner, who performed autopsies on the bodies of Fraser McLeish and Mrs. McLeish.

Miss Lattimer remained in the hospital for three weeks. For more than two weeks her condition was critical. Until she was able to resume her work her condition was dangerous. She professed to know nothing of how her injuries were received, and the police point out that such ignorance was not strange, as a blow such as she was struck would have blotted out her consciousness immediately.

POLICE NOT TOLD.

The police were not told of the happening. It was not until today that the full particulars were learned. A Boston American reporter was admitted to "Beacon Hill" and talked with Miss Lattimer and two other servants, one her sister.

Miss Lattimer admitted that she had suffered as described and had been in the hospital for three weeks, but she declared that it was her belief that her injuries were caused by a fall against the radiator while she was asleep.

PHYSICIANS CONTRADICT.

When asked if her wound was a long one, such as doctors say would have been the case had her head struck an iron radiator, she declared that it was. This is in contradiction to statements by medical men who attended her, who declared her wound was almost as small as that which would have been made by a bullet.

Miss Lattimer was asked if she or either of the other Eppley servants had attended the funeral of the McLeishes. She denied that any of them had. She declared that she had heard nothing of a girl falling in church in the course of the services. Standing beside her at this time was Miss Margaret Pryde, a servant. Miss Pryde is the girl who fainted while the services were being conducted. When she was questioned about the occurrence she admitted that she had attended the services and that she had fainted.

The room where Miss Lattimer was injured was inspected by the Boston American reporter. The chamber is virtually as it was—appointments and all—when the girl's skull was broken. Two objects in the room were found to be of sufficient hardness to have caused a blow such as she received.

One was the radiator. This radiator had been painted a yellow tint some few days before the accident. The paint stands today. The paint of the radiator shows no blemish.

ALSO A CHAIR.

The other object which might have crushed a skull was a chair. Miss Lattimer admitted the chair remained after as it was before she was injured. As to the theory that an electric shock had knocked her against a radiator, it hardly holds weight. Mr. Eppley, owner of the manse, is by profession an electrical engineer. His millions make his occupation in that profession an avocation at best. Examination of the wiring of the house after Miss Lattimer was injured showed that every wire in the estate was in perfect condition.

ANOTHER ATTACK.

In the morning—just before dawn—of another day last Summer, a pretty housemaid in another estate, nearby those of Elsie French Vanderbilt FitzSimons and Mr. Marion Eppley, was awakened by the report of a revolver. She heard footsteps retreating outside. She screamed when she found a window had been shattered, and that a bullet had whizzed over her head against the wall and had bounced harmlessly to the floor. The bullet was a 41-40.

Not far distant, in the room of another pretty servant of one of Newport's millionaires, the air was creased by a bullet which also missed its intended victim. It had been fired through an open window. The time was "between dark and daylight"—just before dawn.

REIGN OF TERROR.

Is there reason for a reign of terror in Newport?

Although the police will not admit it it is known that the strength of the investigation is being centred today in the section of Newport inhabited in the Summer by millionaires and patrolled this time of Winter by armed guards.

Is he a servant himself? A prominent physician of Newport declares he is inclined to believe that a servant is the slayer. He bases this opinion on a condition which he knows exists and which ethics of the profession are mandatory against divulgence. The police, headed by Chief Tobin, are listening to all theories and suggestions, and are following them where they lead.

They picture the slayings of the McLeishes now as something like this:

PICTURE SLAYING.

The couple returned to their home. Mrs. McLeish disrobed and went to bed, while her husband placed the house in order for the night and went outside to bank the furnace fires in the bathrooms. He left the door open as he left the house. Lurking in the vicinity, actuated by the degenerate desire to spy on the occupants as they disrobed, was the felon. His desire rising, say police, he slipped through the door as McLeish went out. He hid himself in a closet, perhaps peeped through the keyhole after McLeish had returned from his last chore. Then, the police theorize, his morbid desire overcoming all prudence, he entered the room, killed the woman, battled with the man, battered him and left him for dead.

News of another crime somewhat similar to that which killed the McLeishes has come to attention of investigators by reports from Providence. In that city, Albert Holscher, a florist was burned to death in his room last Saturday.

The smoking disclosure has been made that Holscher's skull had been damaged by blows on the head with a blunt instrument. His body was so badly burned, however, that the extent of his injuries could not be learned. The medical examiner has pronounced "death by suicide." Holscher's friends scout the concept. His employes say he was in genial spirits and good health when he paid them off.

The police are working on the theory that he was murdered and his house fired to hide the crime.

Just before the dawn of day in August last, when the seashore season of society was at its height, an arm reached through the window of of a maidservant's room in the Eppley mansion and maced the skull of Isabel Lattimer.

NEWS SUPPRESSED.

For nearly six months, news of the atrocious attack was withheld from the police.

The authorities declare that "the servant problem" was the consideration which prompted the private verdict "accidental" to be used as an explanation for the attack which was murderous in nature and nearly caused a death.

NEWPORT FIEND'S ATTACKS ALL ON MILLIONAIRES' EMPLOYES

TWO murders and three near-killings, five in all, are charged by the police to the Newport slayer. All were directed against servants, mostly women, employed on the estates of millionaires. A summary of these crimes follow:

MRS. J. A. F. McLEISH

1 and 2—The fiendish murder of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Fraser McLeish in the lodge on the estate of Mrs. Elsie French Vanderbilt FitzSimons.

3—The crushing of the skull of Miss Isabel Lattimer, servant of Mr. Marion Eppley of New York. She was struck by a heavy instrument as she lay in bed. The marauder is believed to have maced her as she leaned through the window.

4—The firing of a 41-40 caliber rifle bullet at a comely young housemaid employed on an estate in the immediate vicinity of the FitzSimons and Eppley mansion. Police withhold her name. The bullet shattered glass and splintered a wall.

5—The firing of a bullet at a servant in the home of another millionaire, some distance from the scene of the other crimes. The bullet missed and spent itself against a veranda post.

TWO TRAINS FAIL; CROWD JAMS 3D

The train leaving Plymouth on the New Haven railroad at 6 a. m. today reached the South Station one hour and seventeen minutes late.

Engine trouble developed at Kingston, the second stop this side of Plymouth. The train arrived at North Scituate at 8 o'clock, one hour and two minutes behind time.

A crowd was waiting at North Scituate because the 7:06 and the 7:24 had failed to appear. When the belated train from Plymouth appeared at 8 o'clock everybody piled aboard that. The train arrived at the South Station at 9:10, instead of its scheduled time, 7:35.

The Night Express from New York, due at 7 o'clock, was one hour and ten minutes late. The "Owl," due at 7:43, missed by 55 minutes. The boat train from Fall River was 22 minutes late.

was back with two others in a moment.

They strode into the kitchen, shut the door, and seized Mrs. Dislcone. Before she could scream a hand was clapped over her mouth.

A kitchen chair was placed in front of the stove. The helpless woman was forced to sit on the chair.

Ropes and cords were wound around, fastening her body to the chair. Her arms were drawn back and tied. Her legs and feet were roped to the chair.

As final precaution the bandits took the ends of her long braids of hair and fastened them to the top of the chair-back.

A mask, such as are used at costume parties—a comic mask by very irony—was put over her face after a cloth had been tied around her mouth.

The three bandits then went through the apartment. They found $285 and the $125 ring in a trunk and then went out the back way.

TURKISH ARMY MOBILIZES TO RENEW WAR

Constantinople, Jan. 24.—Seven Christians, charged with assisting the Greek army during Greek occupation of Western Anatolia, have been hanged at Smyrna, said a dispatch from that city.

London, Jan 24 (By International News Service).—The Turks have begun to mobilize at Constantinople, according to semi-official reports received here today.

Turkish military preparations for renewal of war, which have been under way for some time, are said to have been hastened by the new crisis in the Near East Peace Conference at Lausanne.

the Triple K," Wally informed a reporter today. "I'm here to stay. Can Valentino help it if he is beset by the attentions of the fair sex? Is it his fault? Is it my fault if the dear little things fall for me?

"No. But, on the other hand, I've decided to ease up on the tender reporter stuff at my fountain. From now on I dispense only soda. There's nothing so annoying as having some disappointed lover on your fruit, and when a score of 'em start plotting—it isn't worth while.

"The little note I got may have come from the Klan bunch they say holds out on Belmont Hill. On the other hand I'm half inclined to think it's from some of the K. K. Kakeaters. There are a lot of them around here. You know the kind, vassilined hair, bell-bottomed pants and Rodolpho Valentino all over.

How Trouble Starts
A German Warning
Big Huckleberries
2 Husbands' Ashes

By Arthur Brisbane
Copyright, 1923, Star Co.

TROUBLE BETWEEN nations used to start in the vanity of kings or in their quarrels about women or in royal ambition to rival Alexander.

Now international troubles start most often in counting rooms of great financiers. French papers and statesmen are criticising the English because they sell coal to Germany. France is spending her money to keep the Germans from using their own coal. England is making millions selling to Germany the British coal that she must have. And France is losing. Trouble in that, perhaps.

MATTERS ARE not pleasant in Germany. The Bavarian government tells the French it can no longer guarantee the safety of M. Dard, minister at Munich. The Bavarian government is afraid that the French minister may be assassinated in revenge for invasion of the Ruhr.

This won't make much difference as regards the Ruhr. But it seems to indicate that the Ruhr invasion has interfered with the French plan for separating Catholic Bavaria from Protestant Prussia that was an important point in Marshal Foch's plan for securing the safety of France by disrupting the German Empire.

NEW JERSEY'S agricultural department hopes to produce a blueberry one inch long. Millions of Americans reading that will look back to days when they used to pick huckleberries smaller than the tip of their little finger, bending over to reach the bushes a few inches high.

How rich the human race would be if it would confine its energies to getting wealth out of nature and the generous earth, instead of one man trying to get it from his neighbor, or one nation from its conquered enemy?

THERE IS no use in arguing about sentiment. It is as it is, and can't be changed. Mrs. A. P. Ahnert, eighty years old, living apart from her third husband, cremated the first two husbands. The crematorium neglected to take good care of their ashes, she says, and she sues for $10,000 damages. How could you damage ashes to the extent of $10,000, after fire has done its worst?

"The heart knoweth his own bustness." A lady may feel about the ashes of her first two husbands in a way that man cannot understand. The cremated husband is often the nearest and dearest. His widow knows approximately where he is.

TO REALIZE how a little thing close by can deceive and hide things more important, farther away, observe the eclipse of Aldebaran on Saturday. In the constellation of the Bull shines fiery red the giant Aldebaran, one of the brightest suns in all the heavens. For nearly an hour and a half, our little moon will completely hide the huge sun from sight, although our moon and fifty thousand like it might fall unnoticed on the surface of Aldebaran. If our own earth fell on that star it would melt before reaching the surface, like a snowflake falling on a hot stove. A savage deceived by the closeness of the moon would say, "It's a hundred times bigger than the star, of course."

Little things deceive us, troubles especially.

A YOUNG French woman two days ago killed an editor of a French royalist newspaper. That newspaper, coming out with a deep black border, says "a German bullet" killed the editor. It calls on all French patriots to write against "The first act of Germanophile-Boisheviks against the action of France in Germany." Paris Socialist newspapers are snubbed accordingly.

This is a troubled world, and in the middle of it all appears Jack Dempsey, refusing tempting offers from moving pictures because "I am looking for a fight."

Many tired nations and individuals in Europe could say to him from their hearts: "Take mine. You can have it."

PLOT CHARGED IN RELEASE OF MISS HANSEN

ANNE LUTHER AND JUANITA HANSEN

It was in Miss Luther's apartment that, it is alleged, a public official assured Miss Hansen (inset) that "right or wrong you'll be free." Her arrest and release in a drug case has caused a scandal in New York.

New York, Jan. 24.—A sensation which has been stirred up in police and Broadway circles following the acquittal of Juanita Hansen, the film actress, on charge of illegal possession of morphine, has for one of its chief points a statement attributed to Miss Hansen herself that she was assured before her trial that she would be freed.

She was arrested January 10. Five days later and two days before her trial there was a meeting between Miss Hansen and an important public official at the apartment of Anne Luther, film actress. According to Miss Hansen this official assured her:

Another feature of the case is the doctoring of the police blotter at West Sixty-eighth street police station in Miss Hansen's case. When arrested she gave her name as Juanita Hansen to the desk lieutenant. Then the name was changed to "Jane Hansen," which would conceal her identity.

SIGN NEW COAL MINE PAY SCALE

By Associated Press.

New York, Jan. 24.—Bituminous coal operators and officials of the United Mine Workers of America today signed a new wage agreement running for one year and covering the Tri-State competitive field of Ohio, Illinois and Indiana. This agreement will be used as a standard for fixing wages and working conditions throughout the rest of the bituminous territory.

The new agreement, it was announced, was virtually the same as that which expires April 1, based on the Federal Fuel Administration's findings in 1920. Copies were ordered sent immediately to President Harding, Attorney-General Daugherty and John Hays Hammond, chairman of the United States Coal Commission.

TALK GEN. EDWARDS AS GOV. PORTO RICO

Washington, Jan. 24.—(By International News Service) — General Clarence R. Edwards, retired, who commanded the 26th Division in the World War, is being considered for appointment as Governor of Porto Rico, to succeed E. Mont Reily, it was learned officially today. Secretary Weeks is understood to favor the appointment.

JESSE MURPHY IS IDENTIFIED AS SLAYER

Jesse Murphy was identified today as the man who killed Edward T. Foley, manager of an Atlantic & Pacific tea store on February 17, 1917, by Frederick J. McCormack of No. 15 Maple street, Roxbury, an eye-witness of the hold-up and killing.

Charles Rollins was convicted of this crime and his brother George was found guilty of the slaying of Ordway R. Hall, another Atlantic & Pacific store manager on Washington street, Dorchester, four days later.

McCormack testified today in Superior Court where Murphy is being tried for the two murders to which he has confessed.

McCormack was asked: "Is the man who fired the shot in this court room?"

"Yes," came the answer and there was a dramatic stillness in the court as McCormack pointed to Murphy, smiling until this time in the prisoner's dock.

"Who jumped over the counter and grabbed the money?"

"It was Jesse Murphy."

Previously youthful Leo McCarthy, an eye witness to the murder of Hall, told of the bandits coming in the store but declared Murphy was not one of the pair. One other, he said, was outside and this one shouted, "don't shoot the kid," referring to McCarthy.

"Did you see any resemblance between the man who was outside and Murphy," he was asked.

"No."

GRIFFITH'S STUDIO DAMAGED BY FIRE

Los Angeles, Jan. 24 (By International News Service)—Damage estimated at $50,000 was done to D. W. Griffith's old studio today when fire broke out in the laboratory. The studio, known as the Fine Arts Studio, houses eight independent motion picture companies. Cause of the fire is unknown.

Dorchester Conductor Reports Refusal to Deliver or Return Money

The "commission gouger" has made his appearance in Dorchester.

This form of added burden to a people already bending under the suffering of the present coal shortage has been reported to the Boston City Fuel Committee for investigation.

Nathan Pearl, a Boston Elevated conductor, living at No. 12 Harvard street, Dorchester, is one of the victims of the "commission gouger." His story, as told to the Boston American, follows:

"I have a wife and three children. A man came to me and told me he could get me coal right away. He said he knew all of the dealers and that it was a 'pinch' for him to get coal. I paid his $32 for two tons of coal and an additional $5 for commission.

"That was around the first of December. To date I have received no coal and when I asked him for my money back, he said 'Oh, that's all right, you'll get it back when I can get it for you.' I called him up again, and he hung up the receiver while I was talking."

"It is my opinion that he is in a league with some coal company managers. Unless I either get coal or the money right away I am going to consult a lawyer."

"I understand that this particular man has done the same thing to many other people."

LITTLE HOARDING

Contrary to the belief of some who have been unable to get coal, there is very little coal hoarding in Boston, according to Everett Morss, City Fuel Administrator.

ILLNESS CLOSES AUBURN SCHOOLS

Auburn, Me., Jan. 24.—By vote of the School Board at a special session, all primary and grammar schools will be closed immediately on account of sickness. In addition to an epidemic of whooping cough, there are sixteen cases of scarlet fever and scores are ill of the grippe. The attendance in the last few days has been reduced by over 15 per cent.

RUM SHIPS HOVER OFF SCITUATE

Coast Guard Cutter Tampa Patrols Coast to Foil Smugglers

Two ships of the supposed rum running "fleet" observed by the Scituate Coast Guard standing by outside the three-mile limit within the past week, were still there early today, while the Coast Guard cutter Tampa maintained an unceasing patrol just off Scituate Harbor.

A truckload of liquor, seized in a Mattapan garage on Monday, was declared by Prohibition Officer Lynch to have been part of a cargo that had been run ashore at Second Cliff on the south side of Scituate harbor from one of the ships of the "fleet" despite the vigilance of the Tampa.

The liquor was of fine quality, bore the label of "Fleischmann & Company" and was the property of "the richest bootlegger in the world," according to Mr. Lynch. The prohibition agent expects to make arrests in Boston today or tomorrow in connection with the seizure.

Lynch declares that the fleet of rum runners, numbering from fifteen to twenty, has been hiding its time off the Scituate coast, for the past week. His information came from private agents planted to Scituate, he said, and it was these agents who informed him of the routing ashore of the liquor cargo which they traced to the Mattapan garage.

Can't Stop Coasters, So Be Careful, Says Goodwin

You can't stop a kid from coasting, any more than you can stop a Vincent Club girl from having a coming-out party.

And who wants to?

"Not I," says State Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin. "The British soldiers tried it on Boston Common but even they couldn't take away from the boys their inherent right.

"But we all want to make it safer. Four children have been killed this Winter by coasting into passing autos. The coasters will be more numerous. The sleds will speed faster. A little extra precaution by the police may save many lives."

SONGBIRDS LAUGH AT PUNCH ON JAW

HAZEL EDEN AND WILLIAM BECK

Beck, a Chicago Opera Company baritone, was fooled completely when Harry Cahill of Dorchester, the company interpreter, dressed in the clothes of Hazel Eden, one of the sopranos. Beck resented the trick with words objectionable to Cahill and is now nursing a sore jaw.

250 MILLION U. S. CREDIT TO EUROPE

Washington, Jan. 24—The bill of Senator Norbeck, Republican, South Dakota, proposing an appropriation of $250,000,000 to furnish credits in Europe for purchase of American agricultural products was reported favorably today by the Senate Agricultural Committee.

HANGS A PUNCH ON BARITONE

Harry Cahill, Dressed in Soprano's Clothes, Resents Remark of William Beck

The special train of the Chicago Civic Opera Company, which brought the songsters from Chicago to Boston, was thrown into an uproar while on the way here by a fight between a Dorchester boy and one of the leading baritones.

Miss Hazel Eden, one of the sopranos of the company, an American girl, had left her compartment in the car to visit some of the other members of the company in another car. Before she left she changed her gown and hat and left them lying on a seat. Then Isaac Van Grover, assistant conductor and unofficial cut-up of the company conceived the idea of dressing up one of the other men in Miss Eden's clothes.

Harry Cahill who lives at No. 65 Whitfield street, Dorchester, does not have his name on the official program, but nevertheless he is absolutely indispensable to the company.

Cahill made a very realistic impersonation of Miss Eden and crawled into the berth of William Beck, German baritone. Mr. Beck is a trifle shortsighted and when he returned to his berth and found a charming young lady wearing the clothes he recognized as belonging to Miss Eden he was astounded. He addressed the supposed young lady very courteously and was in the midst of a curious conversation when roars of laughter from all parts of the car convinced him that something was wrong.

Then he tore the hat from "Miss Eden's" head and found the smiling face of Harry Cahill. What he said did not reach the ears of those who were watching the tableau, but was heard by Cahill. At once his right arm shot out and the fist of a perfectly healthy Dorchester boy connected with the jaw of a high-salaried baritone.

Tyanol Brings Prompt Relief.

Many people suffer attacks by this arch-fiend, commonly called nerve inflammation. The first warning is usually a sharp stabbing pain, which may come and go or hurt constantly. You may feel it in the shoulder, neck, forearm, small of the back, or down the thigh and leg to the heel. It is sometimes mistaken for sciatica, rheumatism or backache, which often attend it.

No matter where you have pere vains or what caused them, you can get quick relief without using narcotics or poisons. Apply Tyanol over the part that hurts, and the pain will be gone.

Tyanol is absorbed through the pores of the skin. It has a soothing, healing effect upon the diseased nerves, gradually building up normal tissue to healthy conditions.

Don't suffer any longer. Price $1 at any druggist.

FRANCE MERELY TO FINE RUHR MAGNATES

Essen, Jan. 24 (By International News Service)—Thousands of striking German coal miners in the Ruhr returned to work today, pending the outcome of the trials of Fritz Thyssen and other coal operators.

Thyssen, one of the richest men in Germany, was arrested by the French authorities and imprisoned, but only fines by the French governmental trying them here for their resistance to the French demands for Ruhr Valley coal. The prosecutor at the close of the forenoon session suggested he was inclined to leniency because of the patriotic motives of the Germans.

Whereas the court in the provision in the regulations of the General Degoutte for the imposition of a fine in case of refusals by the Germans to comply with orders.

CONTENTS LEGALITY.

The trial began immediately upon the arrival of Herren Thyssen, Kastein, Wiesbeicker, Tenzelmann, Otte and Spindler. Dr. Friedrich Grimm, their counsel, argued to establish the illegality of the arrests and the trial. He concluded with a demand that the court declare itself incompetent, basing his argument on The Hague conventions of 1899 and 1917, as well as the Rhineland convention.

Captain Bodin, the prosecutor, replied, and the court, after consulting in private for fifteen minutes, declared its competency and ordered the trial to proceed.

OBEYS ONLY GERMANY.

Herr Thyssen was the first prisoner questioned. He admitted having refused, on January 18 at Bredeny, to obey an order given by the occupation authorities for the delivery of coal.

"I am a German, and my duty compels me to obey the orders of my country and to serve my country," he said. "The entry of troops into the Ruhr was not justified by anything. That is why I will remain faithful to my Father land."

Thyssen told how the industrial leaders informed M. Coste, French inspector-general of mines, that they would supply coal if paid for it, provided the German government did not order otherwise, and how orders were given afterward to the mines to continue delivering coal, but that the Berlin government telegraphed instructions not to deliver coal. The industrialists then informing M. Coste that they must obey their government.

Thousands Quit Work to Join German Army

Munster, Jan. 24 (By the Associated Press)—Recent erroneous reports that the German army was being enlarged caused "hundreds, probably thousands," of laborers to quit their work and come here to enlist in the Reichswehr, says an official statement issued here.

Branding as absolutely false the report that the Reichswehr was to be strengthened, the statement said that this organization has no intention of adding a single man to strength permitted by the peace treaty.

SAFE-GUARD YOUR CHILDREN

A Grateful Mother Relates How Mentho-Laxene Saved One Of Her Children

While Another Passed Away With Pneumonia Before She Knew About This Splendid Cough and Cold Remedy.

Mrs. Kathryn Schmidt, 133 Frazier St., and antiseptic, too. It not only checks 18th Ward, Pittsburgh, Pa., writes under cough and cold, but destroys the germ-date of Dec. 11, 1921: "I am richly and rids the system of congestion, inflammation, etc., that has caused the cough and cold. It soothes and heals the inflamed tissues. It clears the nasal passages, stops the nose-running, tickling or throat-scratching, and soothes the bronchial tubes. It checks the formation of phlegm and takes out the poisons which affect the kidneys, liver and bowels. It relieves the sinus congestion, and stops the nerve-disturbing headaches. Then, and not till then, does the cough cease coughing. I have given it to both grown folks and children with the most gratifying results. I would not be without it for a good deal. I am sorry I did not know of it sooner. It would have saved me much anxiety and perhaps the life of my youngest child which has passed away with pneumonia contracted from a cold just two months ago. You may publish my name if you wish, for I think every mother should know what a safe-guard she may have in easy command. It is a God-send to me. Mentho-Laxene cough syrup, MENTHOLATED."

Mentho-Laxene gives marvelous results to children with acute colds and stubborn coughs and whooping spasms. It is used by very aged people whose chests have become chronically. Many asthmatic victims get relief from this home-made mixture than from expensive medicines and prescriptions of various kinds.

Concentrated Essence

Mentho-Laxene is an Essence, powerfully concentrated pure medicines. (600% stronger than ready-made cough syrups!) You just mix it with home-made sugar syrup into a full pint, and it is still stronger and more quickly effective than any you have ever used, and very pleasant to taste.

And the saving amounts to about $1.00, for a pint is equal to 10 or 12 bottles of ready-made syrups that cost 25 to 50 cents each.

"Double Acting"

Mentho-Laxene works differently, too! It is mildly laxative; tones to the system.

TROOPS OF U. S. LEAVE RHINE

the staff on the picturesque castle walls overlooking the Rhine as the signal was given for "breaking camp." Not a shot was fired in salute, for it was not a martial occasion.

MANY MOIST EYES.

There were many moist eyes among the Americans who watched the spectacle and their long-time associates among the allied forces Infantry, to the Antwerp trains, found the Stars and Stripes hoisted to its accustomed place at revelle while doughboy sentinels still mounted guard at the sally ports.

Their packs were as ready as at in the region. The British and Belgian High Commissioners for the Rhineland kept their word and remained away because they could not bear to witness the lowering of the flag that meant the breaking of so many close ties.

Inside the fort at the same time there was taken from the whitewashed walls the portrait of Washington the Americans had hung there on their coming.

The dawning of the day that was to see the American garrison march down the steep slope of Ehrenbreitstein, across the Rhine into Coblenz and thence, in company with the other units of the Eighth to any moment during the great war, but today the final "fall-in" meant home—the place where, as many a private put it, a dollar is one hundred cents and not several thousand marks.

It was a day of simple ceremony. Four sergeants, picked from among the veterans of the Seventh Machine Gun Battalion, Third Division, who fought at the last battle of the Marne, were accorded the honor of escorting Major-General Henry T. Allen in lowering the colors at the last retreat this noon.

FRENCH TAKE CHARGE.

These non-commissioned officers were Sergeants Harvey Kitner, Leslie Kellough, Charles Young and Frank Ehley. Together with their comrades of Companies D and M, the veteran sergeants waited with full packs beside the halyards for the moment when the flag should flutter down the staff over storied Ehrenbreitstein and the tricolor of France take its place.

For the latter part of the ceremony two details of French soldiers numbering two men and a French band were present.

After completion of the flag ceremony, the order of the day called for the formation of the troops into a column of squads to pass in review before Major-General Allen and march through the postern gate of the fortress. Descending the hill the garrison joined the remainder of the Eighth early in the afternoon and the regiment, crossing the Rhine into Coblenz, passed through the city on the railroad station to entrain for Antwerp.

WIVES AND BABES DEPART.

The women and children of the American contingent started for Antwerp today. A group of sixty-five wives and children of army officers and civilians was escorted by Captain W. G. Purdy.

Seventy-six wives and twenty children of non-commissioned officers and privates left later in charge of Captain Raymond R. Tourtillott, of Lindsay, Col. These contingents are traveling in Antwerp in hospital cars, for greater comfort.

PRAISED BY GERMANS.

Major General Allen received last evening a brief letter from Chancellor Cuno conveying the compliments of the German government on the occasion of the departure of the American forces and assuring their conduct had been friendly farm the American zone over to the French on January 27, or any day thereafter.

"It is with deep regret," he wrote, "that I must bring to an end the delightful official relations which have always existed harmoniously between us and terminate the services the American troops commenced in the war and continued on the Rhine."

OTHER ARRESTS IN DYNAMITE PLOT COMING

Haverhill, Jan. 24.—The attempt to dynamite the shoe factory of Kolbe Brothers at Ward Hill on January 4 when a suitcase with seventy-eight half-pound sticks of dynamite and an infernal machine were placed in an alleyway between the buildings is interesting Federal officials.

Local and State police have important information regarding activities for the past four years of Haverhill persons suspected of Communistic tendencies.

Following the arrest of John E. Merrick, who is being held in $40,000 bail, the police have been seeking others in connection with the case. It is alleged that Merrick was not alone concerned in the explosion attempt, which was frustrated when a wire of the alarm clock of the infernal machine became misplaced.

Merrick was arraigned on two complaints, the first charging him with being the principal in placing the dynamite near the factory and the other with being an accessory before the fact. He pleaded not guilty.

REIDY REJECTED BY CIVIL SERVICE

The appointment of "Popular Mike" Reidy, one of the best known men in the public life of the State, as a street commissioner of Boston, has been turned down by the Civil Service Commission.

Michael J. Reidy.

In keeping with its customary practice the Commission made public no reason why it refused to confirm Reidy.

Michael J. Reidy was appointed by Mayor Curley for the full term of three years. The salary is $4,000.

Mr. Reidy was for several years a member of the House of Representatives and was one of its most powerful debaters. He also served with honor in the late Constitutional Convention.

DISCOVER SOURCE OF "EMBASSY" RUM

Washington, Jan. 24.—Discovery of a source of Washington's supply of "embassy" high grade whiskeys and wines was disclosed today. At least this is the announcement made by the police. The matter, they expect, will be made known through the State Department, and think it will tend to stop the so called "leak."

WOMAN SHOOTS NEIGHBOR'S EAR OFF

"I hear you've been threatening my wife." John Palandino of No. 164 Pemberton street, East Boston, said to his next door neighbor, Mrs. Angelia Pepe.

"You hear too much," Mrs. Pepe observed. From under her apron she drew an awesome .38. She aimed and fired. She shot Palandino's right ear off.

Details of the feud which resulted in the shooting were told today in East Boston Court, where Mrs. Pepe was arraigned on a charge of assault and battery with intent to kill.

She pleaded not guilty and was held in bail of $5,000, furnished by her husband.

EYE-WITNESS TELLS OF KLAN MURDERS

By WM. K. HUTCHINSON, International News Service.

Courthouse, Bastrop, La., Jan. 24.—The great knotted noose of the hangman today swung toward the hooded necks of the "Black Masks" of Morehouse Parish, who carried Watt Daniel and Thomas F. Richards off to a modern crucifixion on that fateful August night, five months ago to a day.

With the hooded mob investigation entering its final session the masterpiece of evidence which has in the hands of the State prosecutors definitely linking the "Black Masks" to the [illegible] murders.

The man who produced this missing link was located by International News Service. Although the State of Louisiana has involved the K. K. K. in the murders, only by vaguely circumstantial evidence, it now can lay the hideous crime squarely on the heads of the hooded mob.

IS "SURPRISE WITNESS."

The "missing link" was furnished by the itinerant autoist, once called the "traveling man," who saw the "black masks" with bloodstained hands carrying the bodies of Daniel and Richards to Lake La Fourche, where they were tossed to a watery grave.

The autoist was found by International News Service and brought to court by Department of Justice agents. He was termed by Assistant Attorney-General Aviapo the State's "surprise witness." He came to L. C. Jones, of Mosselle, Miss.

By his testimony the State hopes to convict the "black masks" as murderers, for it carries the "hooded band" to the edge of Lake La Fourche with the bodies of Daniel and Richards and takes them away empty handed.

WILL CLOSE EVIDENCE.

The autoist's eye witness story will complete the chain of evidence against the "black masks." He says he saw them traveling in the automobiles which other witnesses declared they used at the scene of the kidnaping and again when he passed through the town of Collinston several hours later with Daniel and Richards captives, but still alive.

TO TURN SEARCHLIGHT ON LIVES OF "DRYS"

New York, Jan. 24.—Department of Justice agents have begun an investigation of the private lives of prohibition enforcement officers to determine whether they are spending more money than their government salaries. The enquiry, directed by Assistant United States District Attorney John Holley Clark, Jr., is one result of the discovery recently of a "shakedown ring," which since October has fleeced hundreds of saloon men out of thousands of dollars for promised protection.

WOMAN'S PARLOR CAMPAIGN WINS ELECTION TO CONGRESS

SHE DIDN'T MAKE A SPEECH

Mrs. Nolan, Who Succeeds Her Husband at Washington, to Carry on His Labor Plans

By International News Service.

San Francisco, Jan. 24.—A woman has gone President Harding one better. Mrs. Mae E. Nolan, taking note of the President's front porch campaign, has won election by a "front parlor campaign."

Mrs. Nolan succeeds her husband, the late John I. Nolan, one of the outstanding representatives of labor for many years in Congress. She is California's first congresswoman. She won over a field of six men, all of whom conducted active campaigns.

She never left her home, never made a speech and had a lead of 3,000 over her nearest male competitor. Essentially a "home woman," Mrs. Nolan, because of the recent death of her husband, did not regard it as fitting that she should make a speaking campaign.

PARLOR CAMPAIGN.

But the women of her district—comprising half of San Francisco and the large labor district—came to her. In delegations of from a score to a half-hundred they visited her front parlor. Politics did not enter largely into the discussions. But they sized up the candidate and then went to the polls and carried the word to their husbands and sweethearts that Mrs. Nolan was the candidate.

"I favor modification of the Volstead Act," she told the International News Service as she received congratulations at her home today. "While strictly speaking, the 'wet-dry' is not now an issue. My husband favored liberalization of the provisions of the dry act looking to a return of light wines and beer and any measures having this object will have my support."

OUT AND OUT LABORITE.

Mrs. Nolan will be an out-and-out representative of labor in Congress as was her husband.

"My only reason for running was my desire to see my husband's work carried on in Congress in the way he would have done it himself," she explained between hugs and kisses from her seven-year-old, golden-haired daughter Corliss, who was one of the first to congratulate her mother.

"The laws he planned and worked in behalf of in Congress for the benefit and uplift of the masses, will have my wholehearted endorsement. Chief among them were:

"A measure for the abolition of child labor.

"A minimum wage of $3 for government employes.

"The soldier bonus.

"Limitation of immigration.

"A pension bill for postal and other government employes."

Mrs. Nolan plans to leave for Washington within a week.

Praises Conduct of U. S. Troops on Rhine

Coblenz, Jan. 24 (By Associated Press).—Major-General Henry T. Allen, commander of the American forces in Germany, issued a farewell bulletin to his men.

The bulletin said:

"For four years forces of the American army have held a place on the Rhine.

"My instructions with regard to their correct personal conduct and considerate attitude toward the local population have been rewarded. The correctness of your conduct, in the general high standards of military efficiency set by the various organizations, has made it possible to leave behind an enviable record for justice, fairness and military excellence."

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes—Most Women Can Have Take Olive Tablets

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the successful substitute for calomel—now and then just to keep them fit. 15c and 30c.

NOSE CLOGGED FROM A COLD OR CATARRH

Apply Ely's Cream Balm To Open Up Air Passages.

Ah! What relief! Your clogged nostrils open right up, the air passages of your head are clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, snuffling, mucous discharge, headache, dryness—no struggling for breath at night, your cold or catarrh is gone!

Don't stay stuffed up! Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream in your nostrils, let it penetrate through every air passage of the head; soothe and heal the swollen, inflamed mucous membrane, giving you instant relief. Ely's Cream Balm is just what every cold and catarrh sufferer has been seeking. It's just splendid.

A Startling Discovery for Rheumatism

THE FORMULA OF A NEW JERSEY DOCTOR

Druggists Have Secured the Remarkable Preparation and Are Authorized to Sell it on 10 Days' Trial. Try It.

The discovery of CAMPHOROLE has caused a great deal of excitement in the doctors, who report the wonderful results obtained. CAMPHOROLE represents the theory of medication, soothing and loosening up those stiff, rheumatic joints. It reduces inflammation and drives out pain. Instantly you will breathe a sigh of relief as its soothing and cooling effect reaches the sore spots.

If you suffer with acute or chronic rheumatism, send to the nearest drug store for a small size package of Dr. Brigadelli's CAMPHOROLE and see for yourself how quickly it acts.

Physicians are recommending Camphorole for rheumatism, neuritis, lumbago and neuralgia. Manufactured in Atlantic City, N. J.

BRITISH BANKER SEES FAST RISE IN U. S. PRICES

London, Jan. 25 (By International News Service, by Radio).—Reginald McKenna, chairman of The Great London City and Midland Bank, in his annual report today, predicted that prices would continue to rise in both Great Britain and the United States, but faster in the latter country than in the former.

He recommended a policy of deflation to raise the value of the English pound sterling, but said that the pound would increase in value even under deflation.

"Depreciation of the American dollar has set in and is bound to continue for the present," said Mr. McKenna. "The United States is the only great gold market and the United States is over supplied. The result is that the value of gold is forced down. Depreciation of gold values means a rise of prices in the United States. Even if prices rise here they will rise even faster in the United States."

CONRY SCORES STAND OF SENATOR BORAH

Speaking at Lynn Public Library, Attorney Joseph A. Conry of Boston attacked Senator Borah by saying: "Senator from the mountains of Idaho issues his bleat in behalf of Germany. The Senator was the most conspicuous enemy in the Senate of paying to the American soldiers the bonus most Americans believe to be due them. This same Senator now aligns himself squarely with the Germans, where many Americans believe he belongs." Earlier in his speech, Mr. Conry criticized England's attitude toward France in the collection of reparations.

NEW RADIO COUPLER SIMPLIFIES CIRCUITS

CUTS COST OF SET BY THIRD

An ingenious new coupler, which produces louder and clearer signals, has just been invented by Dr. Ralph H. Piper, a Chicago surgeon. It simplifies all circuits, picks up long distance stations without amplification, and reduces the price of any good set at least one-third. Dr. Piper is seen holding a receiver built with the coupler, showing how it reduces the size of a complete set.

The inset shows a diagrammatic sketch of the coupler. The inner coil, A, is not cylindrical, but is wound in such a shape that the top and bottom are close to the outer coil, while the sides are slightly separated. It thus combines the advantages of close coupling (louder signals) with the advantages of loose coupling (selectivity). The coils are stationary, the outer being the primary and the inner the secondary, and either or both may or may not be tapped.

QUINCY PRIEST'S SILVER JUBILEE

Rev. M. J. Cuddihy

More than 500 members of St. Joseph's Church, Quincy Point, will participate tonight in the silver jubilee celebration of the Rev. M. J. Cuddihy, rector of the church. Father Cuddihy came to the Quincy Point parish from St. Margaret's Church, Dorchester, five years ago and in that time has not only cleared the church of a debt of nearly $20,000 but has erected a large hall for parish activities.

Tonight a concert and reception will feature the celebration. The Rev. William Gross, curate of the parish is general chairman of the jubilee committee.

MERCHANTS ARE ADVISED TO SHARE PROFITS

"An educational department is necessary in every line of business, whether it be in the largest manufacturing plant in the world, the chain store systems or the largest department store, and without such a department, no organization can thrive," declared Dr. Francis B. Short, speaking to members of the Massachusetts Retail Stores' Association, at their annual meeting at the Copley-Plaza.

More than 150 members of the association were present.

Dr. Short assailed "profiteering" by the heads or owners of business establishments who fail to share profits with the workers.

"Every worker in your organization, whether he be the salesman, the manager or the clerk, should receive a certain percentage of the profits," he said. "The small pertinance that they would receive would more than double a business in time.

"I believe that the time will come when this system will be employed in all stores and factories, and that all employes will be considered a real part of the organization."

Buds of Smart Set Turn Out for Grand Opera

MRS. CURTIS GUILD

Mrs. Curtis Guild is seen here carrying the cane which she carried at the opening night of the Chicago Opera Company. Mrs. Guild is the widow of ex-Governor Guild.

By BETTY ALDEN.

THE gentlemen wear their silk hats—some braver souls even sport their opera cloaks—the matrons trot out their very nicest jewelry, and the debutantes—well, even the debs are flocking to the Opera House during the two weeks' stay of the Chicago Opera Company.

I noticed on the opening night that for the first time in a good many years, Society actually showed itself on the Promenade. Quite reminiscent of the days when Boston had an opera of its own.

A most resplendent figure was Mrs. Curtis Guild in black velvet and cream-color lace. Many eyes were cast upon the walking stick which Mrs. Guild carried—an affair of Japanese teak, with a gem-studded handle. There were glances, too, for the fan-shaped diamond fillet and rope of pearls which she wore. In the same box with her was that genial pair, the Frederick Whitwells, the latter in a gown of blue and silver brocade. Her cape was a gorgeous affair of sapphire blue velvet.

Mrs. Edwin S. Webster, who spends almost all her spare time selling sets of that fascinating Chinese game, Mah Jong, in aid of the Simmons College endowment fund—was looking as charming as ever in a gown of silver with panels of jade chiffon.

AS for the buds—they really turned out right royally for the occasion. There's a reason, of course. The debutante season is over now, but the debs must keep "on the go."

Probably one of the most stunning girls at the opening night was tall, slender Dorothy Downing. She wore a simple, cut frock of that new shade of silvery green known as almond, extremely becoming to her brunette coloring. Her features have a "chiseled" look which makes her the focus of many eyes wherever she goes.

Debutante Elizabeth Percival was there, wearing a beruffled frock of jade green velvet. Another slender blonde of the bud continent there was Miss Polly Thayer, who struck a very up-to-date note in a gown of silver printed brocade, one of the latest things for Milady's wardrobe.

Vivacious little Frances Weld, bud daughter of the Bernard C. Welds, was in apricot crepe, delicately beaded in gold. She wore a slender fillet of gold, quite becoming to her blonde hair with its reddish tinge. Dark-haired Gertrude Russell, leader of this year's buds, wore a Paisley cloak over her lavender dress. She came in with a party including Miss Elinor Sutton, a bud of last season.

Speaking of Miss Russell, in one of the boxes I noticed her mother, Mrs. Richard S. Russell, easily one of the most youthful-looking matrons in the auditorium. Her gown was of black lace with silver flowers.

Others there were Mrs. Roylston Beal and her daughter, Miss Betty Beal; Miss Rosamond Bradley, Mrs. William C. Endicott, Mrs. John L. Thorndike and her daughter, Mrs. Nat Seaboins, Jr., Mrs. Reggy Foster (Frances Hoar), Mr. and Mrs. Horace Binney, Miss Katherine Abbott and Miss Susannah Wood.

TOMORROW evening, Miss Alberta M. Houghton is opening her home on Garden street, Cambridge, for a talk in which Jules Bois will compare religion with modern superstitions. M. Bois is giving a series of talks this month in which the psychic enters a good deal.

A host of prominent matrons are interesting themselves in these lectures, the next one to take place on January 30 at Mrs. Robert Farley Clarke's home on Chestnut street, when M. Bois will speak of St. Theresa's visions.

SPRING GOWNS LIGHT, BRIGHT, GAY, IN PARIS

By ALICE LANGELIER,
Cosmopolitan News Service.

Paris, Jan. 24.—Spring clothes are so full of jolly surprises that one ities the purses of many poor husbands.

The new gowns just appearing at the great designers are lovelier than ever before, or least they seem so, so fresh and airy after the dark and sombre Winter ones. The new materials are bright and light in weight and the trimmings are even more fascinating. Plain clothes have vanished. All garments will be gaily decorated.

The Amazon Beckoff is using some extremely applique work. On the softest of materials it is so arranged that it looks as if the loom were responsible for its introduction and not the fingers. On a wrap cloak of crepe romain he puts large motifs of pale gray lace worked all around with blue stitching. There is one to outline each arm as the cloak is held in place, and another to decorate the back of the collar, breaking the line of full ruche of material gathered together.

Another of his lovely models is a kind of crepe georgette afternoon coat in black. The sleeves are of moderate width with tab-like cuffs trimmed with straw embroidery. Before of this fine embroidery is on the coat, where it accentuates the waistline and also on the collar, which folds back or falls in soft covers.

HEAVY FALL OF SNOW IS DUE HERE TONIGHT

More snow!

Due in Boston this evening, may be this afternoon!

Weather man is so confident about it that he even makes a guess as to the amount—about eight inches.

(— — —)

Northeast storm warnings were ordered on display today from Delaware Breakwater to Boston on account of a heavy disturbance over eastern North Carolina with gales, snow and rain. This disturbance is galloping northward.

Keep on your galoshes.

The southeast today was recovering from a blizzard, which swept three States, demoralizing traffic and causing damage of several hundred thousand dollars.

The storm, covering northern Georgia, South Carolina and western North Carolina, left a freezing temperature in its wake.

"MEANEST MAN" FINED $5 ON SNOW CHARGE

Harry Gefen, a Boston El guard of Kearsarge avenue, Roxbury, was in Roxbury court today on a summons for failing to remove snow and ice from the walks at No. 3 Akron street, Roxbury. He alleged that it was the tenant's duty to remove the snow, but the court held it was the landlord's duty, and fined Gefen $5. Gefen was recently found guilty of failing to provide for his wife and children and was characterized in court as the "meanest man in the world."

WIFE TESTIFIES RICHARDSON THREATENED TO KILL HER

BATTERED DOWN HER DOOR

Somerville Woman Had Banned Him From Room; Jury Gets Heart Balm Suit

His wife declared that a barred door offered no obstacles to Herbert C. Richardson, whose $10,000 alienation suit against George E. Brown of No. 30 Michigan avenue, Somerville, for the alleged loss of his wife's love, is now in the hands of the jury.

The wife, Katherine Blanche Richardson, now living with her two children, Cecil and Dorothy, at the Brown home, testified in the East Cambridge Superior Court that she barred her husband out of her room. Not having a lock, she placed a chair under the knob. When she refused to open the door, he battered it down, she said.

As he burst into the room after tearing the door from the hinges and breaking it, according to her testimony, he leveled a revolver at her and threatened:

"If you go to the window to call for help I'll drop you in your tracks."

On another occasion, Raymond Dexter of North Easton, Massachusetts, brother of Mrs. Richardson, testified that Richardson during a fight with his wife, broke down the door between the kitchen and the dining room.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown, on a visit to the Richardson home at No. 19 Wigglesworth street, to get Mrs. Richardson's clothes after her departure for good, saw the door broken and hanging on one hinge, they testified.

Brown vigorously denied the testimony of Mrs. Ella Hobbs, who said that Mrs. Richardson shaved the back of Brown's neck as he soaked his feet in the bath tub.

Dinners in Chinatown's dimly lighted restaurants were denied by Mrs. Richardson and Brown.

LEXINGTON TO GET IPSWICH CHIEF

The Lexington Board of Selectmen announced today the appointment of Edward J. Leavitt, now chief of police of Ipswich, as head of the Lexington police. He will succeed Chief Patrick J. Maguire, who retires from command.

Chief Leavitt has been an officer on the Ipswich force since 1913. During the war he served in the navy as a member of the naval vice squad. He was appointed chief at the age of twenty-eight, being the youngest police head in the State. He comes to Lexington February 10.

Telegraph Brevities

Halifax.—George H. Murray, Premier of Nova Scotia for twenty-seven years, will resign. Hon. E. M. Armstrong, Minister of Mines and Public Works, will succeed him.

New York.—David Belasco has sold screen rights to three of his most successful recent productions for $250,000 cash and a royalty agreement.

Ossining.—The State Board of Parole ordered the release of twenty-five convicts, among them Dr. Julius Hammer, former financial representative of the Russian Soviet government in the United States. He was convicted of malpractice while a physician.

New York.—Despite the fact that the January quota for virtually every European country has been exhausted, the stream of arriving immigrants has continued so that the detention rooms at Ellis Island face almost unprecedented congestion.

Her Father Missing

MISS ALICE BLANCHARD.

Her mother declares that her husband, Albert C. Blanchard of East Weymouth, was lured away by a snake charmer.

SNAKE CHARMER ACCUSED IN ELOPEMENT

East Weymouth, Jan. 24.—The charms of a snake charmer lured away her husband, according to Mrs. Albert C. Blanchard.

Her husband, a fireman, mysteriously disappeared a week ago. "Madame" Pelletier, the lady of the snakes in question, has also left East Weymouth suddenly.

"Just a week ago my husband left me," said the patient-eyed, quiet woman who was his wife. "I was at home with my little girl. When it grew late and little Alice kept asking where her daddy was I began to be anxious.

"I went down to the fire house. And there they told me that my husband had vanished—and presumably with this other woman. They said she had called him every day and several times a day on the phone.

"I broke up my home. I burned all my husband's pictures and letters and everything that would remind me of him.

"I have a good job, now, and I can support my little girl very well. I think I am just as glad he left me, as long as he is the kind of a man that he proved himself to be."

OFFICE BOYS' PAY BIGGEST INCREASE

New York, Jan. 24.—Office boys led all other "professions" in wage increases in 1922, the American Employment Exchange announces. Their salaries were increased from 5 per cent. to 12 per cent. over 1921. Twenty per cent. of so-called "white collar" workers received $36 or more a week in December, 1922.

PRIZE FOX HOUND HOSPITAL PATIENT

Brockton, Jan. 24.—The first dog ever entered at the Brockton hospital as a regular patient was Champion Roamer, a prize fox hound valued at $1,000, owned by Daniel O'Connell and John Butler of this city. A broken tail had rendered him useless as a hunter and show dog and the appendage was carefully put in place by Dr. H. E. Forbes, after an X-ray examination.

Cabbage Shortage

Chicago, Jan. 24.—A shortage of cabbage was predicted today by the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics, due partly to the decreased acreage of cabbage planted this season by Florida and Texas, the two leading Winter shipping States.

GAS OVERCOMES FAMILY OF 7 IN CHELSEA

The whole Gass family in Chelsea was gassed today by coal gas fumes of a hot air furnace burning soft coal. Saul Gesber, who lives above the Gass family at No. 88 Orange street, was awakened by the fumes. He broke into the Gass apartment and found Simon Gass, his wife, Lena, their son, Max, fourteen, and their four daughters, Minnie, Ida, Annie and Beatrice, aged respectively eleven, ten, eight and one, overcome. They came to handily as soon as Mr. Gerber opened a few windows.

POTENT DRUG CLEW IN DEATH OF DANCER

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 24.—Discovery at Long Beach of a powerful medicine in the effects of Fritzie Mann, beautiful San Diego dancer, whose dead body was found in the surf near there last week gave investigators renewed hope that the girl's slayer will soon be known.

The medicine was in a box in Miss Mann's suit case, which was at the Long Beach home of Miss Bernice Edwards, where the dancer visited for a week before her death. Although not active poison, it is powerful enough if taken in large quantities to endanger life. Detectives Sears and Chadwick of San Diego are endeavoring to learn where Miss Mann purchased the medicine. They also are investigating a report that she had bought the drug at the suggestion of a physician.

Ham and Eggs $75.50! Judge Fixes Price to Lynn Thug

A plate of ham and eggs cost Emmett Hughes of Lynn $75.50 when he was arraigned today in Lynn court before Judge Edward D. O'Brien.

The complainant was Dell St. Andrews, an employe of a Lynn restaurant, who alleges that Hughes beat him up after he presented a check for 50 cents for the meal. Hughes refused to pay, alleging an overcharge.

In fining Hughes $75 Judge O'Brien said:

"You look like a thug, you think like a thug and you act like a thug. You've acted like a thug in court. That meal will cost you $75 more than the check called for, and if you ever come into this court on a similar charge I'll send you to jail."

FIND MILLIONS IN TREASURE IN KING'S TOMB

Chicago, Jan. 24.—James Henry Breasted, Egyptologist of the University of Chicago, in a letter to friends here, described the recent opening of the tomb of the Egyptian King, Tutenkhamen at Luxor, Egypt. Professor Breasted was a member of the party that discovered the tomb, with its millions of dollars' worth of treasures.

His letter said in part:

"As we entered the first doorway it seemed more like a dream than a reality.

"Before us lay piled to the ceiling parashernalia of an Egyptian king, golden couches, golden chariots inlaid with precious stones, a golden chair, chests inlaid with ivory in patterns of hieroglyphics, chests of all descriptions.

"One is especially beautiful with painted designs of hunting scenes, wild animals and processions on delicately drawn and colored that it would vie with any Japanese art of the highest description.

"These chests are all filled with precious articles.

"Under the couches were many cases of food. Some of the food was in the form of animals and fowl. Between the two couches on the floor stood four carved alabaster cases of such exquisite workmanship that for beauty alone to say nothing of their age, they would be priceless."

MEN ACCUSED BY J. H. CROMWELL COME TO DEFENSE OF WIFE

New York, Jan. 24.—Flat denials of testimony in behalf of John Howard Cromwell, wealthy New York real estate operator, in his divorce suit against Mrs. Rose Barker Cromwell, featured the case before Supreme Court Justice Seeger at White Plains.

Witness for the defense regarding the evidence for the prosecution. It was repeatedly stated that Mrs. Cromwell had not been alone with different men at different times and places, which constitutes the basis of the suit.

Mrs. Rose B. Cromwell

Arthur Perryman, chauffeur for the Cromwells for four years, was positive Mrs. Cromwell had never been alone with any of the men named by Cromwell. The chauffeur and Henry Lynch, attorney for Cromwell, clashed sharply when the lawyer asked him if he had not questioned him in the hall of the courthouse a few days ago.

"Yes," replied Perryman with a show of anger, "and you told me you'd get me."

"Are you impartial toward me now?" asked Lynch.

"I am personally, but will tell you truthfully what you may ask about this case."

ESCORTED TO HOSPITAL.

The only occasion he saw Harry Cohn, one of the men named in the action, in the car with Mrs. Cromwell, Perryman said, was when she was going to a New York hospital. But, he added, a Dr. Pascal and Mrs. Mulford, the Cromwells' housekeeper, were also in the car.

The testimony of Justine Anderson, a negro maid in the Cromwell household, was bluntly contradicted by Moses Kalidsky, also named in the action. The maid testified that Kalidsky and Irving Mills had stayed overnight at the Cromwell home while Cromwell was away.

DENIES SURPRISE VISIT.

Kalidsky also denied that he and Mills were "surprised" in the Cromwell home at Larchmont by the unexpected return of Cromwell and that Mrs. Cromwell had hurried them away.

Categorical denial was made by Bernard H. Karman, No. 141 East Sixty-first street, New York, of the allegations that he had been alone with Mrs. Cromwell or had been unduly friendly with her. He admitted going out with her in her car, but never alone.

Karman assailed the testimony of Justine Anderson, negro maid, that he went into Mrs. Cromwell's room during the night. Asked if he ever saw Cromwell before he said he had not, after he looked at the plaintiff.

A Stubborn Cough Loosens Right Up

This home-made remedy is a wonder for quick results. Easily and cheaply made.

Here is a home-made syrup which millions of people have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs. It is cheap and simple, but very prompt in action. Under its healing, soothing influence, chest soreness goes, phlegm loosens, breathing becomes easier, tickling in throat stops and you get a good night's restful sleep. The usual throat and chest colds are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, hoarseness, croup, throat tickle, or bronchial asthma.

To make this splendid cough syrup, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup and shake thoroughly. If you prefer use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, you get a full pint—a family supply—of much better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for three times the money. Keeps perfectly and tastes good.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its prompt healing effect upon the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Guard Against "Flu" With Musterole

Musterole is a counter-irritant that relieves congestion (which is what a cold really is) and stimulates circulation.

It has all the good qualities of the old-fashioned mustard plaster without the blister.

Just rub it on with your fingertips. First you will feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief.

Have Musterole handy for emergency use. It may prevent serious illness.

MARION DAVIES IN ROLE OF COUNTRY GIRL

MARION DAVIES will have an entirely new role in her next Cosmopolitan picture, "Adam and Eva." She will play a light hearted country girl revelling in the freedom of outdoor life. "Eva" is not a born and bred country lass. She is that rare product, an exotic hothouse plant, which suddenly grows hardy and strong and beautiful when transplanted to country soil.

There's a lesson in it for many a spoiled daughter of the city and Miss Davies never looked more charming than she does in the simple gingham dresses of the country maiden. The young star of the Cosmopolitan Productions thoroughly enjoyed making these country scenes on a beautiful old farm near Stamford, Ct.

ENGAGES CORRINE GRIFFITH

CORRINE GRIFFITH is much in demand these days. If she fulfilled all the offers that come her way she would be kept at work about 365 days a year. Her latest contract is with the Goldwyn Company. She has been engaged to play the leading role in "Six Days," an Elinor Glyn story.

MARY GARDEN SCORES IN 'TOSCA'

By ZOE FABER.

An imperious Tosca walked out on the stage of the Chicago Opera last night; a Tosca whose love and whose hate worked for an ever-increasing cleverness that became, in the scene of Scarpia's murder, nothing short of diabolical. It was Mary Garden's Tosca justly renowned since her debut in Puccini's "Tosca."

Cavaradossi was sung by Giulio Crimi, who made his first appearance in Boston. He found the part well suited to his capabilities, both vocally and histrionically. Certain of his tones were unusually lovely and the voice throughout was big and dependable with a marked sweetness of quality.

Georges Baklanoff, well known to the opera public of some years ago in Boston, sang Scarpia and sang it well. The resonance of his voice was splendid when it was blended or contrasted with the soprano of Mary Garden. He was more the distraught lover than the sinister hunter of men that other artists have made of the part. It was a vivid portrayal of his interpretation of the composer's intent.

Vittorio Trevisan, who sang the role of the Sacristan, deserves a word of praise for both good singing and clever acting.

The "Visse d'arte," as Mary Garden sang it, and the letter song, as it was sung by Crimi, were both exquisitely beautiful.

The orchestra was under the baton of Ettore Panizza, who achieved all the beauties of the Puccini score.

Claudio Muzio, whose success in "Aida" was instantaneous, will sing both Santuzza in "Cavalleria Rusticana" and Nedda in "Pagliacci"

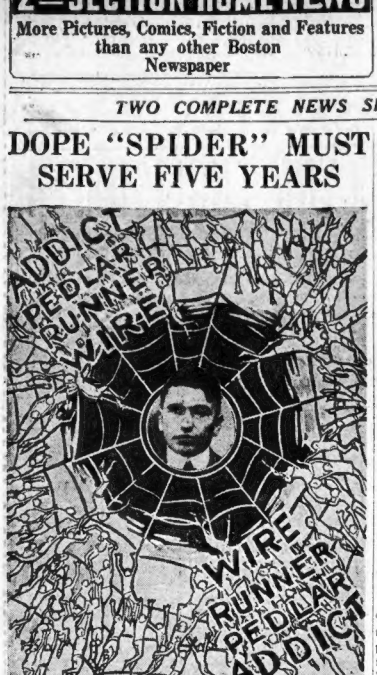
DOPE "SPIDER" MUST SERVE FIVE YEARS



"KING" SOLOMON

BET SOLOMON WILL ESCAPE PRISON

Midnight 'Petting' Parties in School

BET 'KING' WILL BEAT PRISON

Underworld Is Gambling That Charlie Solomon's Gold Will Get Him Free

Charles Solomon, dope king of New England, has been sentenced to five years in Atlanta penitentiary and to pay a $1,000 fine for subornation of perjury. Will he serve it?

The underworld says no. Gamblers are willing to bet that "King" Solomon does not serve his full term.

The first move to get freedom for "King" Solomon has started. His henchmen are plotting. His gold is working.

Less than one hour after Judge Anderson flayed him as a "pest to society" and sentenced him to five years in Federal prison, Charlie Solomon was in conference with two attorneys in Deputy United States Marshal Tighe's office.

And when these lawyers left, the "King" smiled broadly. Why?

SOURCE OF SUPPLY.

"King" Solomon was the chief source of supply of narcotic drugs for all wires, runners, pedlars and addicts in New England. He has furnished agents in all of the New England States with quantities of the contraband drug.

Shots of 'King' Solomon's dope were sold in Boston's West End and North End hours after he was locked in a cell in East Cambridge jail to await transfer South.

Furthermore, Anthony Fecino, fined $500 for possession of the morphine that resulted in Solomon's sentence, has offered to sell morphine and cocaine at the unusually low figure of $25 an ounce to certain trusted pedlars within comparatively few hours. He made the sacrifice price because he fears to operate like in the past. He was one of 'King's' most trusted agents.

BOLDEST IN JAIL.

How many of his lieutenants are "out"? No one knows. Some of the boldest are in jail now. "Crutchy" and "Army Perello," the dapper short-armed youth that aped the "King" to the extent of having four Back Bay love nests where women helpers enticed the unsuspecting and the weak into the crushing embrace of the Octopus' tentacles.

There are enough outside, however. There are those who kidnaped "Dancing Doyle," vaudevillian, held him by force in a house in Charlestown for a day or more and then ran him to Canada where he was abandoned penniless just to prevent his appearance in the United States District Court in Boston.

There are those who acted as go-betweens when the "King" dealt with "Canada Charlie" and Allie Reynolds, who are now both doing time as result of a raid by Special Officers Caverly, Conway and Monahan on a Hunneman street house. "Canada Charlie" was the depraved being who pleaded as he sent his innocent little daughters, five and seven years of age, to deliver to addicts and collect their blood money.

"KING" WAS GENIUS.

"King" Solomon was a genius in crime. He reaped profits of unbelievable proportions. From nothing he amassed a fortune that is estimated at from $50,000 to $250,000 by persons in close touch with him.

Furthermore, his income did not hinge on dope alone. He did bootlegging less than six months ago, there were more than $1,000,000 in stolen bonds in this city and inspector William Flaith of the Post-office Intelligence service, was seeking them for Los Angeles, Memphis, Philadelphia and New York. Solomon was arrested, but was released later.

When there occurred several years ago the $100,000 safe robbery at South Station why did certain police inspectors from Boston headquarters attempt to learn the exact movements of the "King" and just who he had talked with subsequent to the larceny?

SENTENCED AND RELEASED.

Charlie was sentenced to three to five years in Charlestown prison by Judge Dana in Suffolk Superior Court on January 23, 1918, but after serving a comparatively short term was released as result of a technical error in his pulling.

The "King" was arrested once for breaking and entering by Inspector Michael Burke. Another time he was arrested on a similar charge by Llen tenant Bill Irwin, now dead. Then during the war he was haled before the municipal court as an idle person under the war-time work or fight law.

Then he dig up $1,000 in cash in open court as proof of his industry. He was a professional bondsman and was found guilty of giving "straw bail" for his thugs when they fell afoul of the law.

"King" Solomon had affairs of the heart as well as plotting with criminals. He is married and his wife is now sick. He had several affinities, one of whom was a striking blonde who was frequently seen with him in cafes.

LOVED NIGHT LIFE.

The "King" loved the night life. He was a "good fellow," lavish in his entertaining, free with his money and always supplied with plenty of excellent liquor which he dispensed freely.

The Federal narcotic squad of Boston trailed the 'King' for months but always the astute Charlie was able to cry at Fate. His luck was the talk of crooks everywhere.

WOMAN AGENT.

The investigation of the narcotic inspectors disclosed that Solomon sitting in his lair here in Boston would find a faithful woman friend go to Canada where dope is cheap and easy to get. There she would buy.

Then would the supply be run into this country by devious ways. Some times it would be run over lonesome roads in speeding machines or sometimes it would be smuggled through under the concealment of skirts or sometimes it would be artfully hidden in trunks and other containers and shipped by train.

Eventually the shipment would reach Boston. Some agent of the King, usually Tony Ferino, would rent a room. The dope would be sent there. Then Solomon would deal out amounts to his "wires," owner two specially trusted who in turn would pass on to the "runners" and they would sell to the pedlars who would retail to the addicts.

HARD TO CAPTURE.

So the "King" sat back in ease and felt safe for it was virtually an impossibility to catch him unless he should be "double crossed." After weary tracking certain of the narcotic officers enlisted the aid of Mrs. Rose Shaffer of Walnut Park road, Roxbury, and she "tipped" them when the trunk of morphine was received there.

A raid was planned, but in the meantime Inspector Timothy Donovan of police headquarters went to he house in quest of stolen property and found the drug. Thus was he captured.

2,334,171 Pleasure Autos Produced During 1922

Washington, Jan. 24.—Almost three times as many automobiles and trucks were manufactured last December as in that month the previous year, according to the census bureau.

The December output of passenger automobiles was 206,418, compared with 70,620 in December, 1921, and the number of trucks 20,138, compared with 8,307.

Estimates of automobile production in 1922 places the number of passenger automobiles at 2,334,171.

DIVORCEE SUMMONED AGAIN

Mrs. Sue Jordan, Wanted to Appear at Gordon Hearing, Is Being Sought

Another summons calling on Sue Jordan, Allston divorcee, to appear next Monday as a witness in the Dorothy Gordon guardianship case, was issued today by Attorney John L. Sheehan, counsel for John D. Gardiner, who is fighting to oust William F. Jardine as guardian of the $400,000 heiress, confined in the McLean Insane Asylum.

Mrs. Jordan, who departed from her apartment at No. 1309 Commonwealth avenue after being summoned to testify in the Dorothy Gordon case, has not returned. Agents for Gardiner are looking for her with the new summons, and have been ordered to leave no stone unturned to find and produce the comely divorcee at the hearing next Monday.

"I will find that woman yet," said Gardiner, "and you can rest assured that she will be an important witness. We are tracing many purchases which were charged to Dorothy's account ,and which we are certain never went to Dorothy. There are some surprises in view.

"I have been accused of lying down on the Dorothy Gordon case. It has been intimated that I had quit cold. That is a lie. I am back here in the interest of my niece. I am here to fight, and fight I shall until the victory is gained. I know it will be a victory."

BOYS LOCK GIRLS IN ROOM

Lovemaking on Streets Also Causes Protest From Randolph Principal

Randolph, Jan. 24.—Midnight "petting" parties at the Stetson High School, the exchange of affectionate embraces on the roads as the boy and girl pupils go to and from the school, and the use of the teachers' private room by the pupils for love making, have stirred Principal Frederick C. Chapin to protest.

"All this must stop," he says. "The boys and girls of the school are too affectionate. Only engaged couples should indulge in such petting."

And then, he adds: "If the boys walk through the streets in the daytime with their arms about the waists of these young women, what further liberties would they be apt to take in dark or secluded spots?"

In his criticisms, the school master speaks particularly of the approbrious activities of male students. Recently, said he, five girls and five boys were found in one of the teacher's private rooms, the door of which was locked. The boys are more to blame for this violation of rules of decorum and gentlemanliness than are the girls, he said. And the principal added that "in carrying on further investigation, if the facts warranted, he would mete out severe punishment in an effort to check the repetition of these acts.

Recently, a watchman employed in a factory not far from the school said that boys and girls were seen to leave the school building at midnight. Investigation was made which showed that a group of boy and girl students on leaving the school at 10 o'clock, following a rehearsal of the session play, left a window unlocked through which they later climbed back into the building to make merry by themselves in the dim lights until midnight.

Drug Procurer Blasted Lives of 94 Men in One Michigan Town

Seventy-five per cent. of the cocaine manufactured in this country annually is used for illicit purposes, and this does not include that quantity which is smuggled into the country, of which no estimate can be made. We use eighteen times as much opium as Germany and twelve times as much as France.—Sidney Howard in Hearst's Magazine.

By WINIFRED BLACK

Where do they come from, all these poor victims, who have sold themselves body and soul, for "dope?"

We see them in jails, in hospitals, in penitentiaries, in alms houses and in insane asylums. Rich and poor, clever and simple, men and women, boys and girls; what a strange and terrible procession it would make if we could gather the poor creatures up from the slums of the city and from the lowly farms and from the little towns.

How is the habit fastened upon them—this dreadful chain which drags them one by one to madness degeneration and death?

In a dozen different ways—through a dozen different channels, and few of them by accident.

It's a business—the buying and the selling, the planting and the reaping of narcotics—and it is conducted as every other business is conducted—by route and by rule. By experience and by craft. By subtlity and by a plain, sinister knowledge of human weakness and human misery and human despair.

Was it by accident, do you think that the little pimply-faced man opened a shop in a thriving lumber town in Northern Michigan and left behind him, when he went away, ninety-four drug addicts?

It was not in the least accident. A man in Chicago found himself able to get hold of a big supply of drugs from an unexpected source. There was a crusade on, the police and Federal men were particularly active.

The big dealer wanted a new market. He sent out the pimply-faced young man to that particular town because he knew that the men from the big woods came down there to spend their money, big husky young fellows.

The pimply-faced man is what is known as "a good fellow." He told a good story, and he played both the ukelele and the concertina.

He had not been in the town two weeks before the boys began dropping in. One evening he passed around the bowl with something that looked like pulverized sugar, and everybody took a sniff, and what a time they did have.

Ninety-four new customers for the "dope ring" all in one small town. The pimply-faced young man is a favorite with the big dealers in Chicago. He's what they call a "go-getter."

50 DOPE PEDLARS SEIZED IN RAID

Washington, Jan. 24.—Cocaine and heroin valued at nearly $50,000 hooks recording sale of narcotics to Washingtonians in all walks of life and 50 suspected dope pedlars were seized in a raid here today.

District authorities announced they had launched a cleanup of dope pedlars, said to be operating near the White House and Capitol.

The campaign of the Hearst newspapers in exposing the narcotic traffic is, in a big measure, responsible for the drive in Washington.

Federal and district agents raided two Fenton street dives, capturing both negroes and whites, including leading capital dope peddlers. A large quantity of narcotics was destroyed by a fire started by some of the traffickers before the police could seize it.

National American Legion authorities here declared the veterans' body would open a drive against the narcotic evil. The George S. Killeen Post adopted a resolution approving action of the Hearst newspapers in the fight and called on President Harding to set aside an "anti-narcotic week."

COAL $24 A TON AT EASTPORT

Eastport, Me., Jan. 24.—Hard coal is scarce here at $24 a ton. The three-masted British schooner Nadeau with 400 tons American anthracite for St. Stephen, Canada, arrived here Tuesday. The four masted American schooner Marguerite Wymme, with 800 tons of anthracite for Calais, is at anchor near here.

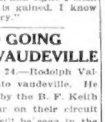
Both vessels are waiting arrival of United States Coast Guard Cutter Ossipee which has started breaking through the ice along the St. Croix River, the international boundary to Calais, Me., and St. Stephen, Canada.

When the cutter has opened a riverway to St. Stephen the British schooner Nadeau can take its 400 tons of American coal to Canada for delivery, while Eastport is called on to pay $18 a ton.

A carload of coal was offered at Calais at $18 a ton.

VALENTINO GOING INTO VAUDEVILLE

New York, Jan. 24.—Rodolph Valentino is going into vaudeville. He has been engaged by the B. F. Keith interests to appear on their circuit and he probably will be seen in the week-day in a couple of weeks.



Winifred Huonut

His bride, who was Winifred Hudnut, will dance and sing with him, their repertoire including the famous tango from his picture, "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," which they have been doing to other lately at various benefits and balls.

They will have their own orchestra. It is said Valentino's salary will be $6,000 a week, probably the highest ever paid to a performer in the history of variety.

COLLEGE EDUCATION ASSET, SAYS MURLIN

"It used to be thought," says President L. H. Murlin of Boston University in his annual report, "that a college education was primarily the need of a few entering the professions. It is now considered a desirable preparation for every kind of service in life."

President Murlin

President Murlin emphasized the heavy financial responsibilities entailed by an increase in B. U. enrollment in the last ten years from 1,500 to more than 9,800 students. "Our annual income has grown in these ten years from approximately $150,000 to $1,200,000, but expenses have grown more rapidly than enrollment," he said. "To meet our present financial needs we need $4,000,000."

RESENT PERMIT TO WOMAN TO PREACH

Portland, Me., Jan. 24.—Rt. Rev. Bishop Benjamin Brewster of the Episcopal diocese of Maine has become the centre of a church controversy which rivals that started by the Rev. Dr. Percy Stickney Grant of New York.

Bishop Brewster has invited a woman to preach from the altar of his church.

The woman is Miss A. Maude Royden, assistant pastor of the Congregational City Temple of London, England.

Sunday evening is set for the meeting in the cathedral. Miss Royden has announced for her topic "Can We Set the World Right?"

For many years Miss Royden has endeavored to secure the privilege of worship. Under the customs of the church such a privilege has never been granted a woman, either in the United States or abroad.

The action of Bishop Brewster in letting down the barriers and inviting the famous English woman to speak at the local cathedral has aroused much adverse comment.

Miss Royden tried to secure permission to speak in Boston but was refused.

BATHING GIRL WEDS CHELSEA MAN

Miss Anna Hessel of No. 48 Beacon street, Chelsea, widely known amateur swimmer, and Joseph Sklover of Chelsea were married at the Beachmont Bungalow. The ceremony was performed by Rabbi M. Sachson of Chelsea. The bride has won many medals and prizes in swimming events around Boston. She is a sister of Max Hessel, the boxer. The groom is a World War veteran.

ACCUSE VET OF DECEIVING GIRL'S FOLKS

Sherman W. Calder, a veteran of the Twenty-sixth Division, and Hazel M. Carpenter of No. 834 Washington street, Lynn, were arraigned today in Lynn court on a statutory charge.

The couple were arrested in the home of the girl's parents, where they were living as man and wife. It was charged Calder had altered a marriage certificate in an effort to deceive the girl's parents into the belief he was her husband.

Calder was being sought on complaint of his wife, who lives in Revere and who charged he was $166 in arrears in money ordered paid by the court for the support of herself and a child.

Calder was told that if he didn't pay the money within twenty-four hours he would be sent to jail. He was fined $60 on the statutory charge.

SHIP OFF ON TRIP AROUND WORLD

By Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, Jan. 24.—A 20,000-mile trip around the world was begun today when the S. S. Samaria steamed out of the harbor, sailing eastward.

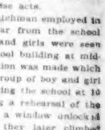
Among the out-of-town passengers on board were:

Boston—Edgar W. Cottle, Charles N. Pollard of Harvard, Syracuse—Howard S. Bremond, San Francisco—Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Coffin, Los Angeles—Mr. and Mrs. Trigg Garner, Detroit—H. H. Rice.

John D. Scully, seventeen years old, and his brother, James G., fourteen, of Asheville, N. C., are on board, reported the youngest round-the-world tourists making a trip unaccompanied.

FAUNCE DEFENDS CHAPEL SERVICE

Providence, Jan. 24.—President W. H. P. Faunce of Brown University has taken issue with Sinclair Lewis, Yale grad. uate and author, on compulsory chapel attendance for college students. The author of "Main Street" recently charged that daily compulsory chapel attendance for students is "a travesty on religion" and a "daily farce."



Pres. W. H. P. Faunce

"Compulsory attendance for University students is of utmost value," declared Dr. Faunce. "The ridiculous value of the service is just what the individual student may make it. The academic value is obvious to all. If Brown students never assembled as a body at chapel or class we should lose vastly in mutual acquaintance, in esprit de corps and in unity of feeling and action.

EVELYN NESBIT GOES TO NEW HOSPITAL

Atlantic City, N. J., Jan. 24.—Because she was denied a certain treatment that attending physicians and nurses insisted would bring a relapse, Evelyn Nesbit today insisted on being removed from the private hospital where she had been confined with influenza for two weeks. She signed her release and was taken to another sanitarium, where she will continue her convalescence. Her condition today was reported fair.

FRANKLIN FIELD SURFACE READY FOR GOLD SKATES RACES

JACK FROST COMES TO AID BIG ICE DERBY

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

At last Jack Frost has come to the aid of those in charge of Greater Boston's First Annual Ice Skating Derby—the GOLD SKATES RACES.

If he keeps up his good work for the remainder of the week, Saturday's program of trial heats at Franklin Field will be conducted under ideal conditions.

No sooner had Jack appeared than the Boston Park Department trotted out its scrapers and planers, and all day yesterday was spent in removing the covering of snow on the Franklin Field surface and preparing it for the fresh coating of glistening ice on which the trial heats of the GOLD SKATES RACES will be conducted.

Jack's appearance came as a boon to the GOLD SKATES entrants. For long they have been fretfully awaiting ice conditions that would enable them to practice up for the approaching events, and yesterday and today such opportunity was at hand.

In Boston alone there were ten playgrounds or ponds where skating was possible. Ice conditions were favorable at Franklin Field, Jamaica Pond, Smith Pond, World War Memorial Park, McConnell Park, Amarino Playground, Cronin Playground, Doherty Playground, Gardy Playground and Holland Playground, and still better conditions were predicted for tomorrow.

Just how many of the nearly 2,000 GOLD SKATES RACE entrants availed themselves of the opportunity for practice could not be ascertained but each of the ten ponds or playrounds was crowded throughout the late afternoon and evening yesterday, and early this morning a number of GOLD SKATES entrants were to be seen ... nine over the surfaces in prac...

...erance of this huge number...sters for Saturday's trial mean the largest as...semblage of skaters in the history of New England Winter sports, and it is expected that the gathering of onlookers who will watch the running races will be the largest ever to attend an athletic event of this nature.

Saturday's program of trial events will consume the entire day.

Louis Bonitto

The nearly 200 boys entered in the race for boys under 14 years of age have been called to report to the GOLD SKATES RACE official at 9.30 in the morning, and it is expected that it will require more than an hour to give each of these youngsters his chance to qualify for the GOLD SKATES FINALS.

The 200 boys entered in the race for boys 14 to 16 years of age have been called to report at 10.30, and it is expected that the remainder of the morning will be spent in giving each of these 200 his chance to qualify for the GOLD SKATES FINALS.

Then at 2:00 in the afternoon all classes of girl skaters will report, and following the trial heats for the girl skaters, will come the trial heat for boys 16 to 18 years of age, and then the trial heats for boys over 18.

These are busy days for those in charge of the big skating derby.

Deputy Park Commissioner William Long is arranging for the officials who will handle the races—the starter, inspectors, judges, timers, etc.—and as all of those under consideration have had long experience in handling athletic events, the participants in the GOLD SKATES trials and finals can be sure the events will be capably conducted.

Arrangements have been made for the proper policing of the course, for during the races the racing area must be kept clear so that nothing can interfere with the contestants.

Kathleen Doherty

The track to be laid out will be one-sixth of a mile in circumference, with a 220-yard straight away, which is the standard track for championship racing, and in the event of any record-making time the New England Skating Association, under whose sanction the derby is being conducted, will see to it that the record is recorded on the Na... Skating Association record ...

...reve as honorary ...have been sent His Excellency Governor Channing H. Cox, and His Honor, Mayor James M. Curley. The latter, although now in the South, may not return in time to serve at the trials on Saturday, but those acquainted with his plans are of the opinion he will be present when the GOLD SKATES FINALS are conducted next week.

It will be of interest to every GOLD SKATES entrant to learn that he will receive in this week's mails a certificate of membership in the Greater Boston Ice Skating Derby Association. These certificates have been specially prepared for the occasion and tastefully printed and should serve as an attractive souvenir.

The certificates, carrying a photograph of a skating scene at the top, bear the following announcement:

> Certificate of Membership to the GREATER BOSTON ICE SKATING DERBY ASSOCIATION (The Gold Skates Races) Conducted by the Boston American, January, 1923.
> This is to certify..... is a member in good standing of the GREATER BOSTON ICE SKATING DERBY ASSOCIATION, having duly entered the FIRST ANNUAL SKATING DERBY, or GOLD SKATES RACES, on or before January 22, 1923.
> GOLD SKATES EDITOR. The Boston American, 80 Summer street, Boston.

The certificates should reach the GOLD SKATES entrants on or before Friday of this week.

McCREARY GETS AWARD OVER TAYLOR

Battling McCreary, Boston negro light-heavyweight, defeated Jack Taylor, highly-touted Omaha lightweight, at the Armory A. show at the Grand Opera House. Taylor did not come up to the expectations of the fans, as he continually covered up, and McCreary was forced to assume the role of aggressor throughout the contest.

It looked as though there would be some real fighting in the second round. Taylor came out of his corner and proceeded to maul the local youth about the ring. When McCreary attempted to retaliate, the Omaha representative covered.

Taylor got his most effective punches in at close quarters, while McCreary excelled at long range. Taylor's covering up tactics drew McCreary towards him, and he was thus enabled to play a tattoo on the Boston boy's midsection.

McCreary's stiff punching in the last three rounds caused Taylor and Tom O'Rourke, his handler, some concern, and aided himself greatly to get the decision.

Johnny Morello of East Boston substituted for Frankie Ryan, who was declared by the physician to be physically unfit to box. He knocked out Tibbie Lawrey of Malden in the second round of the semi-final, a scheduled ten-round bout. Morello put the Malden boy down three times in the second round and only the bell saved him. Lawrey was unable to come back.

Frankie Puff of Charlestown received the decision over Young Cassel of the North End in eight rounds of prelim. Puff found his left hand in Cassel's face throughout the eight sessions, and succeeded in closing one of the North End boy's eyes.

Nick Madonna of Lexington, accorded a beating lesson in the first and second rounds from Tourse Geary of Boston. Then he went back in the third, and succeeded in knocking the local youth out of the picture by a punch delivered while in a clinch.

PRINCETON'S FIVE OVERWHELMS P. M. I.

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 24.—Princeton's basketball team overwhelmed the Pennsylvania Military Institute, 73 to 11, tonight. The visitors did not furnish opposition, and Coach Zahn sent to his complete list of substitutes to give the eighth consecutive contest.

Losh and Klaess, the regular Tiger guard and forward, were given the rest in preparation for the hard contest with Cornell at Ithaca Friday night.

HARVARD WINS IN THE LAST MINUTE

In one of the fastest basketball games played at Goddard Gym this Winter the Harvard Freshman defeated the Tufts Cubs, 23 to 19. Not until the final minute of play was the issue decided.

Harvard started off well and led throughout the first half. Tufts was not aggressive and was clearly outplayed.

But when the teams returned after the intermission the Medford boys produced a rally which tied the score. During the greater share of the second half Harvard was at bay, outfought as the Brown and Blue was in the early moments of the game.

In the final minute of play, with the score 19 all, the Cumbedges team rallied and dropped two baskets in quick succession.

Smith and Edcott were the Crimson stars. Smith caged seven out of twelve free tries at the basket and shot three baskets from the floor besides.

Folsom, the diminutive stationary guard of the Medford boys, was a whirlwind on the defence. He was always on the spot.

MISS AGNES SEANAS

HARVARD SENDS TWO TO NEW YORK MEET

Harvard will send two men to the Millrose games at New York January 31. Captain Billy Burke of Wakefield and Vinton Chapin of Boston will wear the Crimson colors. The mid-year examinations are the reason for the small entry list.

Burke will run in the special two-thirds of a mile race. Chapin will run in the 300.

The two most important events of the B. A. A. games February 3 from a Crimson point of view are the two relays, the two-mile relay with Yale and the one-mile relay with Technology.

The Harvard coaches are trying to pick the right men for the teams that will take part in the Unicorn meet. Burke will run anchor man on the two-mile team. Campbell Newhall will probably be the first runner, Johnny Sherburne and A. W. Gordon are the most likely candidates for the two intermediate positions, although a sophomore, W. L. Chapin, is putting up a strong bid.

The clash between Burke and Tommy Campbell as anchor men for the Crimson and Blue should write track history. Already their brilliant finish of the half-mile in the Harvard-Yale dual meet in the stadium last May has gone down in the annals of collegiate track.

Percy Jenkins, Jim Merrill, Jimmy Murphy and Chapin are the favorites for the one-mile relay outfit that encounters Tech. Merrill will be the anchor man probably.

The freshmen will get a start on the varsity by opening their season Saturday afternoon on the board track at Soldiers Field.

LANDIS SAYS A WAR IS NOT POSSIBLE

New York, Jan. 24.—Asserting that there is no possibility of a major-minor baseball conflict over the draft issue, Commissioner K. M. Landis is in New York to fulfill several speaking engagements in the East.

The commissioner, while reticent in his discussion of the controversy which has arisen as a result of the major league's decision to attach the draft string to all players released hereafter to minor league clubs, indicates his belief that an open break will be avoided.

Shelving of the American League plan to establish zones as a means of curbing "pop-fly" home runs, at least for 1923, was intimated in the commissioner's statement that no meeting of the joint rules committee, to which the matter was referred, has been scheduled this Winter. He said no request had come from either league for a session to discuss the zoning idea.

No joint meeting of the leagues is in prospect.

Commissioner Landis is scheduled to speak at a baseball dinner in Altoona, Pa., tonight; at an American Legion gathering at Reading, Pa., Thursday night; and to attend, on Friday night, at New Haven, Ct., a function in honor of "Bill" Donovan, manager of the New Haven club, which captured the Eastern League pennant last season and claimed the minor league title by virtue of its defeat of the Baltimore Internationals in a post-season series.

HARVARD'S SECONDS WIN HOCKEY GAME

The first class playing of Palmer and Bohlen was the feature of the victory of the Harvard second hockey team over Noble & Greenough School on the Charlesbank rink, Harvard won 4 to 2.

The Crimson seconds got the jump when Palmer scored on a short pass from Reid. The same pair tallied again a few minutes later. Then the schoolboy team evened up the score on shots by Spalding and Whitmore.

The game hung in the balances at 2-all for a short time until Bohlen, the Crimson defence man, cut loose and scored two goals that won the game.

LYNN ENGLISH TEAM MEETS SOMERVILLE

By FRED C. LANE.

The Lynn English High track team is in for plenty of work this week with two dual meets carded. Somerville High will carry out an agreement in the Lynn gymnasium this afternoon; Boston College High will engage the Sexton squad on Friday evening.

The Maroon and Gold team is the stiffest assignment Coach Sexton's boys have this year. Medford High, considered the best track team in the public high school ranks, won over the Dempsey aggregation by a slim score.

Competing on their own track will prove an advantage to the Shoe City brigade. The shotput should be an interesting event for lovers of this sport with Mel Cunningham, captain of the Lynn team, and Art Woodley of the B. C. H. team hurling the iron. Both boys are capable of throwing the weight 40 feet or better.

Barney McDermott is the visitors' premier performer in the 1,000-yard dash. There is doubt that Lynn can hold him.

Somerville High's track team is in the experimental stage. It is the first year the school has been represented in indoor track.

Lynn has arranged a date with Newton High for February 15. Only the intermediates and juniors will take part. The meet will be held in the Newton gym.

A varsity club made up of letter men is being organized. Mel Cunningham has been elected temporary chairman and Leonard Eldridge will serve as secretary until the members meet on Monday to elect permanent officers and draw up a set of by-laws. Hadley, Grady, Chase, Pierce, Cunningham and Eldridge are on the committee.

Coach Sexton has a few open dates on the basketball schedule that he would like to fill. Teams desiring games should get in touch with him.

The performance of Fred Uhrig, John Sullivan and Francis Hogan of West Roxbury High speaks well for the coaching of Jim Duffey. It is the first year that any of them ever wore track shoes, yet each won a first place in the triangular meet with Hyde Park and East Boston in his events.

Uhrig won the senior 1,000; Hogan breasted the tape first in the intermediate 220, and Sullivan won the intermediate 600. West Roxbury carried off first place in the senior hurdles when Ed Hasehl won over a large field.

Rifle teams are being organized in all the Boston High Schools. The first tournament will be held on February 1 at the Mary State School.

Athletic activity at Swampscott High is confined to basketball. It was planned to organize a hockey team, but lack of ice has upset all hopes. Cliff Crowther is coaching.

The team played three games. It won two and lost one. Swampscott won over the Swamscott boys in their last start, 15 to 13. The game went into two overtime periods. It was played at Lowell.

Fred Rowe is centre, Happenny and Monigon are forwards, and Brown and Chaisson, guards. Captain Bufalino has been confined to the side lines with an injured knee. The team has a strong reserve in Gately, Smith, Dennis, Engles and Hicks.

Basketball practice is once more under way at Revere High now that the gymnasium is repaired. A broken ceiling prevented the team practice for three weeks.

CELTICS TAKE WHIRLWINDS INTO CAMP

The Original Celtics, of New York, champion basketball team of the world, defeated the Boston Whirlwinds, 25 to 20, before nearly five thousand fans, many of whom were women.

The game, which was for the title, was governed by professional rules, and was the first world's championship match here in two years. Two Knights of Columbus fives battled in a preliminary. The Fore Mac-quette Council defeated the Shawmut Council, 28 to 22.

Hardly had the two teams got warmed up ere Captain Johnny Beckman of the Celtics, dribbled the ball from the centre and shot it into the basket for the first goal.

What appealed to the fans more than anything through the match was the brilliant and dazzling way in which George "Horse" Haggerty, the Celtic centre, handled the ball with one hand. Just as an elephant would wind his trunk full of hay about his head, the big boy would whirl the ball around in one hand.

The Celtics played a passing game remarkable for accuracy and grace and skill.

When the first half closed the Celtics led, 17 to 6. In the second half the Boston outfit had more pep.

The Whirlwinds discarded the slow work of dribbling and holding the ball and resorted to the passing game in the closing period.

In the first half except for the basket that Captain "Snappy" O'Connell shot from centre the Boston team got their scores on fouls. In the second period they played a much better game and scored six consecutive baskets from the floor. Dave Seamon got two, "Tacks" Connell two and O'Connell and Bill Barrett got one each.

The stars for the visiting quintet were John Beckman, who scored four baskets off the floor and two from foul; Johnny Barry, who scored two pretty direct passes to the loop, Nat Holman and Haggerty, who was always in the tussle and gave the Whirlwinds plenty of trouble throughout the entire game.

BROWNS TRAIN UNDERSTUDY FOR SISLER

St. Louis, Mo. Jan. 24.—The Browns will have an understudy for George Sisler. It is the first time since Sisler became regular first baseman for the Brown in 1918 that a second string first sacker even has been considered.

Consideration of the advisability of an understudy, it was explained, was given only after it was believed the injury Sisler suffered to his right shoulder last September may cause him some annoyance next season should he strain the shoulder.

Sisler, however, expressed confidence that the shoulder would be in perfect condition when the season opened.

BARNEY EPPER TO TEACH BOXING

The Russell Club will become an incubator, as it were, for fighting eggs, if the plans of Sam Berenson, known throughout Boston as the "Jewish Tiger," are carried through.

Barney Epper

Believing that the members of the club should be proficient in the manly art, Sam has arranged to employ Barney Epper, well known boxer to impart the necessary instructions.

A sum of money has already been expended for fitting out the club with all the paraphernalia for embryo boxers. Instructions will be given to all members who desire it, and it is expected that the Russell Club will soon step to the forefront as the homs of first class boxers.

WILBERT ROBINSON MAY GET YANKEES

New York, Jan. 24.—According to a current report, Wilbert Robinson, manager of Brooklyn, will become the next manager of the Yankees.

Miller Huggins, present boss of the Yanks, has said that his poor health may interfere with him continuing managerial duties and that in a year or so he plans to buy a minor league club.

DEMPSEY READY TO FIGHT WAY THROUGH CHALLENGERS

WILLARD AND JOHNSON TO GET FIRST DATES

By JACK CONWAY

Heavyweights!

They're bobbing up again

Like chorus girls and ladies with broken hearts the big fellows manage to keep in the news

Jack Dempsey, greatest fighter the world has known since the days of David, stands at attention ready to knock over anybody who challenges his position

Jess Willard, old and fat, asks a chance to win back his title

Floyd Johnson, twenty-two years old and a real ring warrior, knocks over the opposition and dreams of the day he will battle for the championship.

Tom Gibbons says

"I'll beat Johnson in May and Dempsey later."

Jack Dempsey

Joe Beckett drinks good ale at London road houses and tells willing listeners who do not know anything about boxing that he will defeat Dempsey.

Harry Wills, world's greatest fighter with the exception of Dempsey, scratches his head and wonders why he has been left out in the cold to shiver when only a few months ago he was the white haired boy when a Dempsey bout was discussed.

Jess Willard

Meanwhile English promoters are bidding for a Dempsey-Willard bout while Tex Rickard is going about his business in his usual nonchalant manner.

When Rickard perfects his plans he will announce who Dempsey's next opponent will be and where the bout will be staged.

• • •

Jack Kearns recently told this writer that there was only one active promoter in the world in whom he had a great deal of confidence. Rickard was the man mentioned.

Harry Wills

There are some town promoters who will offer up to a million dollars for a bout without blinking an eye. There are the big city "sports" who will bid high for ring matches while they dodge service as a sheriff.

After the necessary steam up of a bout has taken place Rickard usually steps upon the stage, asks the orchestra to play a little soft music and then announces:

"Ladies and gentlemen I have signed the young men to box at one of my clubs."

Rickard gets the big bouts not so much because the boxers like Tex personally as it is on account of his ability to attract tremendous gate receipts and conduct things in an orderly manner.

Who will get the first opportunity to meet the champion?

Rickard could answer this question if he cared to do so.

Tex says he knows of no reason why Jess Willard, old and fat, should not be given a bout with Dempsey.

Chairman William Muldoon of the New York Boxing Commission, who says what he means and then refuses to alter his opinion, declares Willard is too old to fight.

Which means that the Dempsey-Willard bout will go to Boyle's Thirty Acres at Jersey City, New Jersey.

They like Rickard in Jersey, especially the politicians. So there will not be any objections to the proposed match.

• • •

And then what?

It all depends, as the story writ-

Feel Like Working?

You sure do if you spent last evening in exercise and play. It's great to get under the needle shower after your gym work and then come up for a dive through sparkling salt water, feeling like a new man. The Y is great! C'mon in.

To young men 18 years old or over, this ad is good for a free swim in the pool.

THE DAY'S Biggest Lie

By SPEC T. LATE

THE Harvard Athletic Association today voted to abolish the application system and put all seats for football games on public sale

(NOW, YOU TELL ONE)

Floyd Johnson.

If Floyd Johnson defeats Tom Gibbons in New York in March everybody will be clamoring for a Johnson-Dempsey bout.

If Gibbons wins, Tom of St. Paul will ask for his opportunity.

Between these real bouts, Dempsey may go to England and knock out the much abused Joe Beckett. "Take Jack" can get $25,000 for such a match. And this is quite a sum of money to pay any young man when all he has to do is to swing his fists a couple of times.

• • •

What of Harry Wills, most dangerous contender for the championship? His chances have faded like last June's rose.

The promoters never liked the idea of a mixed match. Neither did Dempsey and Kearns.

Wills only got consideration when there was another opponent in sight for the champion.

The Dempsey-Wills proposition was pigeonholed prior to last Fall's election.

Some of the Tammany politicians declared it would be unfair to oppose a bout between a white heavyweight and a colored heavyweight.

That was before election.

It is now after election.

Politicians do not talk the same way after they take office as they do when looking for the votes of the people.

• • •

We call readers of this column this month last October. We quoted the same information to Paddy Mullins, manager of Wills. We told him Wills would be acting unwisely if he forced Dempsey to meet the colored challenger before the November elections. But there was delay somewhere and apparently Wills has lost his chance to become a world's champion.

Louis Firpo

In passing it might be well to at least give honorable mention to Louis Firpo, Argentine heavyweight, who thinks he can defeat Dempsey. What a cruel blow it would be to a great many people if there were a law which penalized people for imagining they are better than they really are.

• • •

Regardless of all else, however, it is pleasing to know that Dempsey is going to quit his trade (they say profession up on Mason street) as an actor and return to his favorite form of recreation which is that of fighting.

Or so the sages say,
And yet it must be lots of fun,
To watch two live that way.
For while it may be stuff that's deep,
Pray tell who wants to live that cheap?

With the chorus girls who marry wealthy men it's not so much a question of permanent waves as much as will they be permanent waves.

No Winter is complete without some oldtimer recalling the blizzard of 1888.

For Brainy People

Q—I'm a very, very poor boy. My girl jilted me. How am I to get my ring back?

A—Stop payments on it. The installment collector will do the rest.

Q—What is a cheap substitute for coal?

A—German marks or Russian rubles.

Q—Do you believe in love at first sight?

A—Absolutely. If more people took a second look they'd never get married to each other.

Q—Do you think the soldier will ever get a bonus?

A—As long as the Congressmen retain a monopoly on all the bone.

Careless Shampooing Spoils the Hair

USE MULSIFIED

Soap should be used very carefully if you want to keep your hair in the best. Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo; it is pure and greaseless, and is better than anything else you can use.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass of hot water is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water, then rub the Mulsified into the scalp in the usual manner, using a good deal of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dandruff, dirt and excess oil. The hair will be fluffy and exceptionally soft, and it will take just a few minutes to dry, but it will be bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any pharmacy. It is very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

Butterflies

DRAWN BY PEGGY PRENTICE

SOFT furs worth a queen's ransom, the subdued glory of gorgeous [illegible] like hose, slippers as dainty as the most delicate head dress allowing jewels set in fantasies of gold and platinum—these are the decorations of Beauty's wondrous setting.

Ladies, as they make her look, deliciously charming as they contribute to seem, are they any more beautiful than the iridescent [illegible] which flit the wings of the butterfly with which she so often is compared?

Flitting from "good time" to "good time"—tasting the sweets of dance and play of opera and motion pictures, of love fantasy, but never of the sordid facts of life—she does not even wing her way! She's transported in motor cars!

But what would be the Summer fields without the butterflies? Why, too, would be the pageantry of life without its human butterflies? Who knows?

WHEN A GIRL MARRIES

Anne Decides to Cultivate the Habit of Letting Folks Take Care of Themselves Instead of Playing "Mrs. Fixit"

By Ann Lisle

"BEFORE the scouring process is complete, you poor little lamb among wolves," I laughed, "let me assure you that you won't find yourself occupied in running away from Ralph Lacy. Mr. Lacy's absorbed in business. He has a completely impersonal attitude toward womankind. He adores his little adopted aunt. You'll find him devoting the evening to her and her happiness. So you'll be free to enjoy yourself with whichever of your little playmates you choose. And I'll amiably put up with the other as my squire."

I'M HURT AND BRUISED AND SORE

"You think I'm a big silly," said Mabel slowly, "and I daresay I am. But I'm hurt and bruised and sore—and I don't want ever again to be in a position to be hurt. Suppose you had ever lost your faith in Mr. Harrison — can you imagine wanting anything more to do with men?

"I can't imagine losing my faith in Jim!" I flung back. I'd never permit myself to care for a man I didn't trust—didn't know was — square."

Answered Sadly

"No," answered Mabel sadly. "You wouldn't. But I did. It shows what emotions can do to me. I'd never trust my judgment again. If I found myself caring for a man I'd run away from him and from myself. A nice boy does as a playmate—or business associate. But I don't want to meet grown men."

Something basically and stupidly honest, perhaps, impelled me to the declaration that Park is a man, too—Ralph Lacy's classmate and chum. But as the words formed themselves on my lips the telephone rang.

"Excuse me a minute," signalled Mabel, her hand over the transmitter. "It's business."

"I must run along," I replied. "Must see Pat Dalton."

And with a feeling that I'd certainly tried to do my duty, I left the office. But I didn't know whether to be relieved or sorry because Mabel still thinks Park the wide-eyed boy his looks and manner suggest.

As I went down to Pat's office I congratulated myself because I had been prevented from explaining to Mabel in so many words that Park isn't the mere boy she mistakes him to be. "Playing Mrs. Fix It" used to be my favorite role, but there was no phase of me which appealed less to Jim.

So I supposed I might as well cultivate the habit of letting folks take care of themselves before he gets back to object to my interventions in behalf of "all and sundry."

Pat had not returned from luncheon, and one of his business force explained that she thought he would not be in either office this afternoon as he was driving out to Dreamwold with a guest. I stopped in at the Stuyvesant office, however, to inquire for Pat and to remind Neal that he and Phoebe Kins were dining with me that evening.

Then I hurried back to the day's job, interrupting it long enough to tell Miss May about the projected theatre party for the next evening.

"Park stopped in to invite me," she giggled. "Dear knows, when you think how gallant that boy is to an old woman like me, you can just guess what a wonderful lover he made."

I jumped. Something in the vigor and the almost Elizabethan frankness of her phrasing startled me. I found myself duly grateful that we were without witnesses or audience.

"He's a nice child," I said, consciously phlegmatine.

"So's Ralph," replied Miss May with a dryness that seemed almost purposeful. "Have you invited him to the party yet? He'll be almost as good a playmate — for this young Oliver lad as Park is."

"No, but I will," I laughed, and sat down to telephone my invitation.

"Are you sure your Miss Storrs will want me?" asked Ralph Lacy when I had greeted him and had invited him. His acumen was by no means astonishing, for Mabel's frozen attitude toward him had been clear enough. There was nothing for me to say in reply but some part of the truth.

Odd Girl

"Miss Storrs is an odd girl. She hasn't found the men she's dealt with in her business career very strongly inclined to be fair and square with her. So she's reserved and suspicious — where men are concerned. You mustn't take it personally."

"Doesn't matter at all," replied Mr. Lacy so easily that it was evident he was telling the exact truth and not fitting it to the requirements of fact. "Just didn't want to spoil my one's evening. But if she has nothing worse than a grouch on my sex, because she's known some yellow specimens, we'll sit right and lot the truth about my muchly maligned half of the world seep in as she gets to know how white old Park is."

And I refrained from explanations and didn't suggest to Mabel that Park was boy, not man. So Mr. Lacy agreed to come to the party, stipulating that he be host at dinner first.

"I'll accommodate Park to drop round for Miss Storrs and young Oliver and then call for Aunt May and you and me, if that suits you," he said.

I agreed that was an excellent idea and with a happy feeling that Mabel Storrs was about to get a happier viewpoint concerning men I said goodbye, told Miss May of the amended plans and settled down to work.

The afternoon passed quickly. In spite of my good intentions to concentration I found 6 o'clock swinging around with only about half of what I'd hoped to do actually accomplished. When I came into the outer office, hatted and coated for the trip home, I discovered Miss May still hard at work.

"Time to go home," I chided.

"I've just finished the day's work on the Derringforth stuff," she explained, looking up with a weary gesture and pressing back a lock of hair which had straggled across her forehead. "Now I've got to arrange a few ideas for the Hoadley layout. Mr. Hoadley's taking me out to dinner in order to talk over some new ideas and to give me a bit of help."

THE PRIDE OF PALOMAR By PETER B. KYNE

An Engrossing Story of Southern California by the Author of "Kindred of the Dust"

START THIS NEW STORY TODAY

The story opens on the Rancho Palomar, an extensive tract in Southern California. Old Don Miguel Farrel, alone on the heavily mortgaged rancho with only his last faithful retainer, Pablo Arteian, and the latter's expansive wife, receives a telegram from the War Department at Washington announcing the death in battle in Siberia of his only son, "Don Mike." The shock kills him. Don Mike arrives and finds a family of Parkers there, including a beautiful daughter, Kay. Mr. Parker is scheming to get the ranch and sell it to the Japanese. Don Mike asks him to bid on it and then refuses to sell. Kay gives Bill Conway money to go on building a dam on the ranch. She becomes jealous of a girl neighbor of Don Mike's.

Bill Conway urges the potato baron to leave the valley

It is a Cosmopolitan Production, direction of Frank Borzage, and featuring Forrest Stanley and Marjorie Daw. It is released as a Paramount picture.

"I SUPPOSE Miss Owens," Farrell prompted her, having introduced himself and the Parkers, "that you have to contend with the native Japanese schools."

She pointed to a brown house half a mile way. Over it flew the flag of Japan. "They learn ancestor worship and how to kowtow to the Emperor's picture down there, after they have attended school here," she volunteered. "Poor little tots! Their heads must ache with the amount of instruction they receive. After they have learned here that Columbus discovered America on October 12, 1492, they proceed to that Japanese school and are taught that Mikado is a divinity and a direct descendant of the Sun God. And I suppose, also, they are taught that it is a fine clean, manly thing to pack little, green or decayed strawberries at the bottom of a crate with nice big ones on top—in defiance of a State law. Our weights and measures law and a few others are very onerous to our people in La Questa."

"Do you mean to tell me, Miss Owens," Parker asked, "that you despair of educating these little Japanese children to be useful American citizens?"

"I do. The Buddhist school over yonder is teaching them to be Japanese citizens, under Japanese law all Japanese citizens remain Japanese citizens at heart, even if they do occasionally vote here. The discipline of my school is very lax," she continued. "It would be, of course, in view of the total lack of parental support. In that other school, however, the discipline is excellent."

She continued to discourse with them, giving an intimate picture of life in this little Japan and interesting revelations upon the point of view, family life and business ethics of the parents of her pupils, until it was time to "take up" school again, when she reluctantly returned to her poorly paid and unappreciated efforts.

"Well, of course, those people are impossible socially," John Parker admitted magnanimously. "But they do know how to make things grow. They are not afraid of hard work. Perhaps that is why they have supplanted the white farmers."

"Indeed they do know how Mr. Parker. And they can produce good crops more cheaply than a white farmer. A Japanese with a wife and two fairly well-grown daughters saves the wages of three hired men. Thus he is enabled to work his ground more thoroughly. When he leases land he tries to acquire rich land, which he robs of its fertility in three years and then passes on to renew the outrage elsewhere. Where he owns land, however, he increases fertility by proper fertilization."

"So you do not believe it possible for a white man to compete economically with these people, Farrel?"

"Would you, if you were a white farmer, care to compete with the Japanese farmers of this valley? Would you care to live in a rough board shack, subsist largely on rice, labor from daylight to dark and force your wife and daughter to labor with you in the fields? Would you care to live in a kennel and never read a book or take an interest in public affairs or thrill at a sunset or consider that you really ought to contribute a dollar toward starving childhood in Europe? Would you?"

Sorry Picture

"I paint what I see before me," he answered doggedly. "This—in five years. And if this be progress as we view progress—if this be desirable material or agricultural evolution, then I'm out of time with my world and my times, and as soon as I am certain of it I'll blow my brains out."

Parker chuckled at this outburst and Kay prodded him with her elbow—a warning prod. The conversation languished immediately. Don Mike sat staring out upon the little green farms and the little brown men and women who toiled on them.

"Angry, Don Mike?" the girl asked presently. He bent upon her a glance of infinite sadness.

"No my dear girl, just feeling a little depressed. It's hard for a man who loves his country so well that he would gladly die a thousand dreadful deaths for it, to have to fight the disloyal thought that perhaps, after all, it isn't really worth fighting for and dying for. If we only had the courage and the foresight and the firmness of the Australians and New Zealanders——"

"Why, Kay, those sane people will not ever permit an Indian prince—a British subject, forsooth—to enter their country except under bond and then for six months only. When the six months have expired—because still are! You couldn't find a Jap in Australia, with a search warrant. But do you hear any Japanese threats of war against Australia, for this alleged insult to her national honor? You do not. They save the bombast for puny-footing, cocksure-living, backward-looking, dollar-worshipping America. As a nation we do not wish to be awakened from our complacency and the old story that a prophet is without honor in his own country is a true one. So perhaps it would be well if we discuss something else—luncheon, for instance. Attention! Silence in the ranks. Here we are at the Hotel De Las Rosas."

Excused Himself

Having denied his guests, Farrel excused himself, strolled over to the railroad station and arranged with the agent for cattle cars to be spotted in on the siding close to town three days later. From the station he repaired to the office of his father's old attorney, where he was closeted some fifteen minutes, after which he returned to his guests awaiting his return on the wide hotel veranda.

"Have you completed your business?" Parker inquired.

"Yes, sir, I have. I have also completed some of yours. Coming away from the office of my attorney, I noticed the office of your attorney right across the hall, so I dropped in and accepted service of the complaint in action for the foreclosure of your confounded old mortgage. This time your suit is not to stick! Father-more, as I jogged down Main street, I met Judge Morton, of Superior Court, and made him promise that if the suit should be filed this afternoon he would take it up on his calendar tomorrow morning and render a judgment in your favor."

"By George," Parker declared, apparently puzzled, "one gathers the impression that you relish parting with your patrimony when you actually speed the date of departure."

Mr. Parker took Don Mike by the lapel of his coat. "You have a secret," she charged.

He shook his head.

"You have." Kay challenged

Struggle of the Last of an Ancient Line to Save Estate From Hands of Japanese

"The intuition of two women can not be gainsaid."

Farrel took each lady by the arm and with high, mincing steps, simulating the utmost caution in his advance, he led them a little way down the veranda out of hearing of the husband and father.

"It isn't a secret," he whispered. "Because a secret is something which one has a strong desire to conceal. However, I do not in the least mind telling you the cause of the O be joyful loss that has aroused your curiosity. Please lower your heads and incline your best ears toward me. There! I rejoice because I have the shaggy old wolf of Wall Street, more familiarly known as John Parker, beaten at his favorite indoor sport of high and lofty finance. 'Tis sad, but true. The old boy's a good fawn. Le roi est mort! vive le roi!"

Kay's eyes danced. "Really, Miguel?"

"Not really or actually, Kay, but —er—morally certain."

Disappointment

"Oh!" There was disappointment in her voice. Her mother was looking at Don Mike sharply, shrewdly, but she said nothing, and Farrel had a feeling that his big moment had fallen rather flat.

"How soon will John be called upon to bow his head and take the blow?" Mrs. Parker finally asked. "Much as I sympathize with you, Miguel, I dislike the thought of John hanging in suspense, as it were."

"Oh, I have quite made up my mind," he replied. "I could do it within three days, I think, but why rush the execution? Three months hence will be ample time. You see," he confided, "I like you all so well that I plan to delay action for six months or a year, unless, of course, you are anxious for an excuse to leave the ranch sooner. If you really want to go as soon as possible, of course I'll get busy and cook Senor Parker's goose, but——"

"You're incorrigible," the lady declared. "Procrastinate, by all means. It would be very lonely for you without us, I'm sure."

"Indeed it would be. That portion of me which I wish could picture my old hacienda alive at night with ghosts and banchees."

Mrs. Parker was looking at him thoughtfully, seemingly she was not listening. What she really was doing was saying to herself: "What marvelous teeth he has and what an altogether debonair, captivating young rascal he is, to be sure! I cannot understand why he doesn't melt John's business heart. Can it be that under that gay, smiling, lovable surface John sees something he doesn't quite like? I wonder."

Started for Home

As they entered the waiting automobile and started for home, Farrel, who occupied the front seat with the chauffeur, turned and faced the Parkers. "From this day forward," he promised them, "we are all going to devote ourselves to the serious task of enjoying life to the utmost. For my part I am not going to talk business or finances, immigration or any more. Are you all grateful?"

"We are," they cried in unison. He thanked them with his rebirthful eyes, faced around in his seat and, staring straight ahead, was soon lost in day dreams. John Parker and his wife exchanged glances, then both looked at their daughter, seated between them. She, too, was building castles in Spain!

When they alighted from the car before the hacienda, Mrs. Parker lingered until the pair gate had closed on her daughter and Farrel, then she drew her husband down beside her on the bench under the catalpa tree.

"John, Miguel Farrel says he has you beaten."

"I hope so, dear," he replied feelingly. "I know of but one way out for that young man, and if he has discovered it so readily I'd be a poor sort indeed not to enjoy his victory."

"You never really meant to take his ranch away from him, did you, John?"

"Of course not. To

YOUR BEAUTY

NEW SERIES OF AUTHORITATIVE ARTICLES

By Maria Jeritza

(The Famous Prima Donna of the Metropolitan Opera Company and One the Most Beautiful Women of the Day.)

YOU will have discovered by this time—if you have followed the suggestions I have offered in these little chats which have been such a pleasure to me, and which I trust have proved of benefit to you—that one very pleasant truth underlies them all. This is, that the simple rules which improve one feature of your beauty are certain to help you to become lovelier in every way.

For instance, deep breathing not only aids your complexion, but gives new life and lightness to your walk, clearness to your eyes, color to your lips and a general happy sense of well-being.

So the little massage movement I suggested in my last chat will help your neck as well as your chin and will improve your general circulation. And you will find, also, that the fearless independence of thought which I so strongly advocated as a help to chin beauty, will cause you to hold your neck erect—an absolute essential to grace.

Swimming and tennis are aids to neck development because they necessitate constantly carrying the neck erect. But if you find it impossible to take time for these interesting sports, there is a simple little exercise I shall urge you to try. You can practice it every morning and evening in your own room and it will help to develop your neck to beautiful proportions, and will also develop the muscles of your legs and help you to attain the muscle control which is essential to poise.

This exercise is not new—in fact it has been used extensively by the girl scouts because it not only tends to develop a scrawny neck into loveliness, but also to reduce the neck that is too plump.

The exercise is simply this—squat on the floor, Turkish fashion, without aiding yourself with your hands. Keep your muscles under control all the way down. When you are on the floor in position, raise your head up and back, roll it around to the left side, down on your chest and around the right side to your back with a circular movement. In order to avoid dizziness, repeat three times and then reverse the movement, moving your head from right to left several times.

This exercise will help to reduce or build up your neck to correct proportions.

Now your neck may be either short or long, instead of the ideal size. Although you cannot really change its length, you can make a too-long neck seem shorter by carrying it gracefully. You may also make it more lovely by taking care that it is developed to normal curve, avoiding any suggestion of scrawniness. And if your neck is just a little shorter than it should be, you can prevent this fact from detracting from your appearance, by holding your neck very erect and straight and seeing that it does not become fat and flabby.

A beautiful, rounded neck is as lovely a possession and as really attainable, that every woman should make it a point to give her neck the care which will insure its beauty and well-being.

EAT PLENTY OF FRUIT

—By Brice Belden, M. D.—

FRUIT ought not to be regarded as a luxury but as a daily necessity. The fruits contain valuable nutritional elements and furnish much water and roughage. Their organic acids have a particularly beneficial effect upon the kidneys.

Unless fruit juices are given to babies brought up on cow's milk or prepared milk foods they will suffer from what are known as deficiency diseases, of which scurvy is an example. Growth and health will be seriously affected unless orange juice is used.

Fruit, both in the case of babies and adults, is a "protective food," because of the contained vitamins.

Bananas have a high food value. When they cause digestive disturbances they are too green or eaten too fast or eaten too abundantly. They should be fully ripe when eaten, as shown by a darkening of the skin. They may be baked in the skin or stewed and mashed, and flavored with lemon juice and sugar, in this form taking the place of a vegetable in a meal.

Of the many excellences of apples it is hardly necessary to speak, but it ought to be said that if one or two apples are eaten at the morning and evening meals and much water drunk between meals few cases of sluggish elimination will be able to resist the treatment.

TELL IT AT DINNER

A CROWDED car was making its way citywards. Suddenly it gave a lurch, and a man who was strap-hanging fell on to a lady's knees.

He got up as quickly as possible, and turning to the lady, said: "Madam, excuse my being a Lan-lander!"

Everybody in the car, including the lady herself, laughed at his really wit—that is, everybody with the exception of a big Scots man, whose face never relaxed. Presently the man from the North got off the car, and to the intense lahment of the passersby, began to laugh heartily. He kept this up until he arrived at his office, where he met a friend who asked him what was the matter.

"Ah, mon," he answered. "Ah've just heard such an excellent joke. Ah was coming to town in a car, and it gave a jolt, and made a mon fall on to a lady's knees. He got up and said: 'Madam, Ah hope you will excuse me being an Irishman'"

HEROINES OF HISTORY

Significant Incidents in Lives of Famous Women

—By MARK STUYVESANT—

How Anne Hutchinson Became America's First Champion of Woman's Rights, Privileges and Clear Duties

IN 1634 a woman left England and came to America in order to worship God as she chose. Because she possessed strong convictions and fearlessly voiced her beliefs and opinions, she died in the most cruel and tragic way.

How strange her story seems to us today, and how unjust her punishment! But it is women like Anne Hutchinson who fought for their rights, who have given women of our country the splendid freedom and opportunity for proving their possibilities and worth which they enjoy today.

Anne Hutchinson made the already fatal mistake of her sex of talking too much. She and her husband were passengers on the ship Griffin, which sailed from England to Boston.

On board the Griffin was a dyed-in-the-wool Puritan reformer, the Rev. Zechiah Symmes. To this pious gentleman Mrs. Hutchinson frankly talked of her religious convictions and beliefs.

When the company of colonists arrived in Boston the Rev. Symmes promptly denounced Anne Hutchinson as "a prophetess." To the early ultra-sanctimonious Puritans this was a terrible and unforgivable accusation.

As a result of the label which these devout gentlemen had attached to this well-meaning woman she was refused admission to the church. This hurt her and put her in a degrading position.

At that period religious meetings were held which women were not permitted to attend.

Already resentful as a result of the unfair attitude toward her personally, this preferment of men in the worship of God aroused Anne Hutchinson's wrath.

She forthwith started holding meetings of her own, which were fully attended. She was the real pioneer of women's rights in America.

But this hold step resulted more disastrously than her conversation on shipboard with the Rev. Symmes. For that conscientious gentleman resented her attacks on some of the clergy, and determined to silence her.

This was only done when she was brought before the General Court of Massachusetts, tried for—she knew not what—and banished from the colony.

Anne Hutchinson and her husband moved to Rhode Island to Roger Williams's colony for religious liberty. There Mr. Hutchinson died.

The distracted widow decided to move to the New Netherlands, among the kindly Dutch. She settled in New Rochelle, then a wilderness, occupied by but sixteen people.

Here the unfortunate woman

The Rev. Symmes Denounced Her.

and all of her children except one were burned to death in an Indian raid.

Because she was an individual who desired to express herself freely and to allow her personality to be felt, Anne Hutchinson paid the penalty of death.

But her effort helped to pave the way for the universal freedom enjoyed both by men and women which makes this country great as it is today.

OH, wildly do the autos dash about our busy town, they don fine names into hash and run good people down. Equipped with every late device, they're easy things to drive; folks claim they're more than worth their price—that is, if they survive. But there is quite a lengthy list of chaps who meet their fate because of bridges that they missed or by the local freight. The autos trained to start o. k. and take the curves with grace, and it can go the life-long day, nor ever slacken pace. MOTHER! BREAK CHILD'S COLD WITH "CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP"

Hurry! Clean Little System with this Harmless Laxative

No matter what else you give your child to relieve a bad cold, sore throat or congestion, be sure to first open the little one's bowels with "California Fig Syrup" to get rid of the poisons and waste which are causing the cold and congestion. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works the constipation poison, sour bile and trouble right out.

Even if you call your family physician he will praise you for having given "California Fig Syrup" as the laxative because it never fails, never cramps or overacts, and even sick children love the pleasant taste.

Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

Isn't it inspiring to talk with a man who has a glorious vision of his job in the world?

Isn't it true, too, that without quenchless enthusiasm the heights of success rarely can be attained?

Are not the big things in the world done by men who conceive wonderful dreams and then consecrate brains and bodies to transforming those dreams into realities?

A former oil drummer is today the undisputed leader and genius of the copper industry of America.—John D. Ryan. It was he who saw the world's future in finding out and acquiring direction of the greatest brass manufacturing enterprise in the United States, and it was he who, more recently, saw the importance of winning for his company, and therefore for America, control of the greatest body of copper ore in the world, ore capable of being smelted into refined copper and marketed through without the world more cheaply than could be done by any other property extant. Anaconda's acquisition of, first, The American Brass Company, and, second, the Chile Copper Company, gives Ryan an unprecedented volume of copper and an unparalleled outlet for copper. It is understood, also, that Ryan is heavily interested in other important copper producing enterprises.

* * *

John D. Ryan's vision of the future of copper stirs one's imagination. Said he to me the other day:

"Copper is going to be a wonderful business. It is only in its infancy.

"Wages have gone up in this country tremendously, and are bound to remain high. The demand for labor saving devices will become keener and keener as time passes. Practically every labor saving device uses electricity. This means that there is in store tremendous expansion in the use of electricity.

"This coming expension of electrification, this coming multiplication of labor saving devices on a scale heretofore unknown, is going to mean a demand for copper infinitely greater than the world has yet known. As one looks ahead there is virtually no limit to copper's possibilities."

May it not be that it is because he is possessed by such a vast, far-flung, inspiring vision of copper that John D. Ryan has risen to the status of America's acknowledged "copper king"?

Inordinate power, however, carries with it inordinate responsibilities. In this democratic age public, rightfully, hesitate to entrust unbridled, monopolistic power to any individual or any concern. With this thought in mind I broached the subject of the possibility that anything approaching control of the copper industry might lead to restricted production and unduly high prices. Mr. Ryan replied:

"Not necessarily. We are everybody who works a copper mine has to produce a reasonable amount of copper to get his costs down to a reasonable basis. And he has to have reasonable costs in order to get a reasonable profit, or even to be able to borrow the money necessary to continue the operations during bad times."

BIG NEW PLANT FOR ENDICOTT

George F. Johnson, president of Endicott Johnson Corporation, says:

"Year ended December 31, last, was most successful in history of the Endicott Johnson Corporation. Operations resulted in net profit of $10,000,000. Shipments increased over 1921, by 25 per cent, to 25,000,000 pairs, as against a net increase of 9 per cent. in dollars or nearly $5,000,000. A lower cost of living caused the difference in these percentages.

"We are building a factory at West Endicott, with capacity of 7,000 pairs daily, to make popular price Goodyear welt shoes.

"Production is being started in a modern factory in Binghamton, with capacity 4,000 pairs daily of boys' Goodyear welt shoes.

"We have a large new Goodyear welt shoe factory in Johnson City, with capacity 6,000 pairs daily. The New Victory factory, Johnson City, one of the finest and most complete shoe factories in the world, is well under operation, with a capacity of 26,000 pairs daily and now running about 19,000 daily.

"With new plants that are now under construction in full operation our capacity will average upwards of 156,000 pairs daily, against present rate of 125,000 pairs."

CALIF. STANDARD OIL DIVIDEND GIVEN

Standard Oil of California has declared dividend of 50 cents, payable March 15 to stock of record February 20. This is equal to $1 paid quarterly prior to stock dividend of 100 per cent.

$25,000,000 Offer

New York, Jan. — Offer of $25,000,000 has been made to the Guggenheims of New York for the American Printing Company, according to a special dispatch from Fall River, printed in a trade paper today.

New York Market Is Generally Firm with Oil and Railroad Groups Active

NEW HAVEN UP AND LIVELY ON BIG BOARD

Prices were generally firm today on the New York Stock Exchange, with oil and railroad groups active. New Haven was a leader among the low priced rails, advancing over a point. Money renewed at 4½ per cent.

Fisher Body, Tuesday's recessional feature, was comparatively inactive, moving within a small range following announcement that all the directors of the General Motors Corporation have resigned as Fisher Body directors.

Tentative plans have been adopted under which Fisher Body Corporation will issue $20,000,000 6 per cent serial notes, to be sold through the Bankers Trust Company of New York city, and 200,000 shares of no par value common stock, to be offered pro-rata to its common stock holders at $15 per share.

Resumption of Tuesday's late buying of railroad shares imparted a firm tone to prices at the opening. St. Paul preferred, Great Northern preferred, Pere Marquette, Atchison and Frisco preferred were among the first shares to respond to higher ground. Baldwin advanced ¾ and Cluett Peabody and Federal Mining & Smelting preferred 2 points each, but Packing dropped 2 points and heaviness was noted in Pacific Oil and Studebaker Corporation.

Buying of railroad shares was confined largely to the low priced speculative issues, some of the high priced dividend payers exhibiting a slightly reactionary tendency.

Frisco preferred extended its gain to 1¾, and Pere Marquette, Chicago Northwestern, St. Paul preferred and Northern Pacific to 1 each.

Rock Island and Missouri Pacific preferred, Reading, Chile Copper, Southern common and preferred and New Orleans, Texas & Mexico advanced fractionally, while Atchawafaya and Louisville & Nashville lost ground.

Losses of a point or more were recorded by Standard Oil of New Jersey and California, California Petroleum, American Sugar and Postum Cereal. Foreign Exchanges greed lower.

New Record High Set in Boston by Waldorf

Waldorf set a new record high in today's transactions on the Boston Stock Exchange. Eastern Steamship sold up 7¼, to 48 5/8.

Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway adjustments rose 2 points, at 38.

Calumet & Arizona lost a point, at 52. Calumet & Hecla and Pacific Mills both recovered their dividends. New Haven was up ¾, at 40.

Boston Curb: Curb market activ issues were Southern States, up 4, at 16; Goldfield Deep, off 2, at 24; Boston Ely, off 2, at 18, and Eureka-Croesus, unchanged.

Boston Notes

AMERICAN Agricultural preferred has been bought better recently as a result of advance in sulphuric acid and fertilizers, and on word there have been good seasonal bookings.

TENNESSEE Copper stays in the market limelight as stock is "it" imminent dividend expectations.

INTERNATIONAL Paper's output was below normal at time when newsprint production was setting records, due chiefly to hampering of operations early in the year as an aftermath of the strike and the then uncertain outlook.

UNITED Fruit's sugar profits in 1922 proved much better than anticipated and that earnings held up splendidly in the final quarter.

CONSOLIDATED Textile's new management, led by American Woolen interests, plans to purchase no new machinery for present. Company will buy its cotton and pay for it instead of using carrying charges. This calls for considerable cash and for this reason bills payable, which stood at $5,884,500 on July 1 are not likely to show material reduction for some time.

HIGHER price for copper, making it possible to pay wages that will enable mines to compete with other industries, appears to be solution to problem now facing copper producers in view of impending to calls for greater production.

COPPER Range mines, by means of imported labor and additions made from the ranks of farmer-miners, are making a slight gain in manpower that is reflected in tonnage reports.

QUINCY is proceeding with erection of new plant at mills to house low pressure turbine, which will manufacture power to supply mill.

ARCADIAN Consolidated, at annual meeting soon, may decide to speed up development work.

WINONA shaft has been drained to eighth level, whence water flows to old workings, and only small amount of water remains to be moved before actual drilling can begin.

HORNBLOWER & WEEKS—We would continue policy of avoiding commitments in the main body of stocks and waiting for market to prove itself before becoming further involved in it except to buy or sell specialties for special reasons when indicated.

Dividend Declarations

General Asphalt Co., declared quarterly 1¼ per cent, on preferred, payable March 1, stock of record Feb. 14.

Wall St. Gossip

CHARLES G. HIMER, White Oil Corporation official, declares: "The corporation owns good properties and its situation as regards lease holdings in oil-producing areas and in prospective territory is considered favorable."

TODD'S Shipyards' Tebo plant has been awarded contract for construction of two steel, oil burning tugboats by the Standard Transportation Co. Deliveries are scheduled for early Summer.

PAN-AMERICAN Petroleum is building fourteen 50,000-barrel tanks at Carteret, N. J., to store Mexican oil, and eight at New Orleans to care for Smackover, Ark., output.

PHILADELPHIA Rapid Transit for 1922 reports operating revenue of $42,529,543, against $43,420,605 in 1921. Net income was $1,839,377, or a bit over 6% on stock, against $1,807,293 in 1921.

ANACONDA and Chile are both confidently forecast in many quarters to sell higher.

OILS, says one Wall Street story, are not being bought by banking interests that have usually been responsible for oil share advances. Many traders, therefore, have been exercising more caution in this direction.

UNITED States Rubber and Kelly-Springfield are regarded as two best situated companies in industry, as regards inventory.

R. J. REYNOLDS Tobacco earnings after all charges, of some $4,200,000 in 1922, were the best in the company's history and some people think this the strongest company in the industry.

TOBACCO companies carry between two and three years' supply of the leaf; at present their stocks show a handsome appreciation, having been bought about 25% under the going market.

LOFT, INC., sales for quarter ended December 31, 1922, were $2,102,778, increase of $66,491 over same period in 1921.

SOUTHERN Pacific earnings for 1922 are expected to show the $6 dividend earned twice over.

BEECH-NUT Packing Co., it is estimated should show $10 a share for 1922.

A LARGE short interest, estimated by some at 50,000 shares, is said to be lodged in Piggly Wiggly. The position has advanced well over the point where it was decided several months ago to issue new stock at 50 to shareholders.

HOPES for a larger dividend from Hudson Motor continue.

GOODYEAR Tire & Rubber Company will retire $9,902,500 prior preference stock, leaving total outstanding $20,000,000.

PRESIDENT ARKALL of Beech-Nut Packing Company says: "Rumors that Beech-Nut Packing Company intends declaring an extra stock dividend or increasing present regular cash dividend rate are without foundation."

NEW YORK Central has contracted with General Electric Company for automatic substation to be installed on its electrified division at 110th street and Park avenue, New York.

WESTERN UNION, in 1922, with December estimated, showed net of $11,384,126, after charges and taxes, equal to $11.25 a share on the 996,750 shares of stock, against $8,808,808, or $9.65 a share in 1921, and $13.33 in 1920. Earnings past three years indicate company has little reaction to depression.

TEXAS Company has advanced Mexia crude oil 25 cents a barrel to $1.50 and Currie of 41 degrees gravity or above, 40 cents a barrel to $2.20.

PRINCE & WHITELY—Possibility of a quick change in complexion of affairs abroad is said in important quarters not to be as remote as surface appearances indicate.

THOMSON & McKINNON—At the present it is merely a case of those who are committed maintaining their position and leaving the field to the professionals, whose in and out operations are giving the daily fluctuations.

HALLE & STIEGLITZ—When the market begins to go upward we still expect the rails and equipments, under the leadership of Baldwin, to do best.

E. F. HUTTON & Co.—We think the market is acting very well under the circumstances and we are bullish on good stocks for the pull.

How ROUND Is Your Skull?

It's an Important Question. Two Heads Worth Studying

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

This is to make readers study the shape of the head. Don't take it too seriously. Some queerly shaped heads contain and produce many fine things. Some magnificently shaped heads have amounted to nothing.

It depends, of course, on what goes on INSIDE the head, on how strongly the strange power called WILL drives the brain. That decides whether you are somebody or nobody.

But all other things being even, bear in mind that the more nearly ROUND the profile of your skull is, the better chance you have of being somebody really worth while. It should be round like a wheel, not like a croquet ball.

For instance, here you see Goethe's silhouette.

Fifty-nine millions out of sixty millions of Germans would call him "the greatest German."

Silhouette of Goethe, the Great German

Below you see another round-shaped head, marvelously moulded. That is old Voltaire, the Frenchman that laid the mental foundation of the French revolution.

Notice how nearly round these two profiles are, from the top of the nose to the back of the skull.

A great English scientist tells you that the ideal profile is one as nearly a perfect circle as possible, allowing for necessary openings for eyes, mouth and nose, that inform and feed the brain and express its thoughts.

The picture of Goethe in profile is a reproduction of a silhouette that hangs now in the Goethe House at Frankfort. Goethe posed for it when he was seventy-seven years old. It does not do full justice to the roundness of Goethe's skull. The bow in the back of his neck cuts off part of the curve, and the loose hair at the bottom of old Voltaire's skull hides part of that admirable curve.

Notice Voltaire's ear, how LOW it is on his head. Much depends on the location of the ear. The brain is all ABOVE the ear, no brain BELOW it. A monkey might have a skull something like that of Voltaire, but the ear would be up at the top—no possibility of thought there.

Profile of Voltaire, Great Frenchman

Both of these men had great imagination.

You will notice that each has a skull round at the top. In that round top there are supposed to dwell imagination and reverence. Some will say that Voltaire had little reverence. But he had plenty of it for the things HE respected, including justice and the right of a man to think as he pleases without being told by somebody else what he MUST think.

Goethe's imagination, of course, was infinitely greater than that of Voltaire.

And a thousand years from now probably a thousand will know Goethe for one that will know about Voltaire.

It is not that the brain of Goethe, the German, was better than that of Voltaire, the Frenchman. But Goethe was a CREATOR, Voltaire a CRITIC. One built mind pictures that will last. The other criticized and helped to tear down that which had to be removed, and will soon be forgotten.

Many Germans will tell you that Goethe was the greatest of all writers. That's a mistake. His place is FOURTH.

First comes Shakespeare, then Homer, then Dante, and fourth Goethe.

Moliere of France and Cervantes of Spain would compete for the fifth place in all the world's writing genius.

This particular writer would put Villon ahead of Cervantes and Moliere. But the majority would not agree with that judgment.

Goethe's "Faust" is in itself a fairly good education, and it ought to be a part of every education. The second part of "Faust" especially is worth while, although the young prefer the first part—the devil and the beautiful Marguerite make that part exciting.

For the encouragement of older men it may be mentioned that Goethe finished that second part when he was seventy-two years old, five years before this silhouette was made.

For an idea of Voltaire's style read his "Zadig," which you can get, translated, in any library, or his "Philosophical Dictionary"—read a few hundred pages of it at least. In that is the best of French wit.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

MAN AND WOMAN

By Bruno Lessing

MAN and woman. Yes, that's really something to think about. And, apropos, here's a good joke.

Professor Einstein of Germany went to Japan to lecture upon his theory of relativity.

The professor was amazed and delighted to find that hundreds of Japanese, principally women, were battling for admission to the hall to hear him. As his lecture progressed, the audience began to ooze out. And then he found that the Japanese press agent had translated "relativity," into "The Relation of Man to Woman."

Well, after all, I suppose it's the most important relativity that exists. Man and woman have been related to each other since time on earth began.

It is a relation with as many sides as there are men and women in the world. A man, during his lifetime, can only understand the relations between himself and the women he has met. And, quite frequently, he doesn't even understand that much.

If you do not believe this and think you can put into words just what this relation is, just try it. I'm willing to take bets that no two explanations agree.

London Club Admits Women

LONDON, Jan. 24.—Women are invading the club life of Englishmen.

J. Wilson Taylor, secretary of the exclusive Bath Club, predicts that in the future "it will be difficult to exclude women from our clubs. This club has 2,500 members, of whom 400 are women. They have their own rooms and the use of the baths on one day a week. Twenty years ago such a thing would have been unthinkable.

The statement seems to hold forth reason for protest on the part of the women—"the use of the baths on one day a week"—and England is a country that has won world-wide renown for its alleged proclivities for frequent bathing.

Help the Horses

Editor Boston American:

There are days when the Animal Rescue League is repeatedly notified by telephone that there are certain streets or squares where horses are continually falling and we are begged to do something about it. Every one must know that in such weather as we have had this Winter the city cannot possibly keep all the icy places covered with sand, though they are certainly trying to do their best.

Every one who feels distressed by seeing a horse slipping and falling on an icy street may keep one horse from falling by sending to the Animal Rescue League, No. 61 Carver street, a little help, if not more than one dollar, toward an emergency ambulance to be used this Winter for sanding streets and in Spring and Summer for the many emergency calls the League is always receiving. Checks should be made to the Animal Rescue League.

MRS. HUNTINGTON SMITH, President, Animal Rescue League.

Street Car Etiquette

Editor Boston American:

Why is it that these gadding women, who have nothing to do but attend matinees or pester the life out of our shop-girls, persist in going home during the rush hours and expect working men to give up their seats in the street cars?

The other night I overheard two of them talking. One said: "It is a poor class of gentlemen in this car, all right. Not one of them offered us a seat." And then the conversation turned to the show they had seen that afternoon.

I say that if these women can't get out of the city before the rush hour they should be forced to stand up. Why should a man who has been slaving all day to earn bread and butter for his family be obliged to stand up all the way home so that some of these butterfly women may sit down and rest their weary (?) bodies? Evening Work

Editor Helping Hand:

I am a young married woman with five children and find it hard to get along, as my husband makes small pay and we have a few bills to pay up from sickness. I wonder if any of your readers know of any place where I could work evenings after 5 p. m.? I worked during the Christmas holidays and would be glad to do any kind of work.

Sewing Machine

Editor Helping Hand:

If any of the readers have a sewing machine that they are no longer using, would they kindly give it to a poor woman who wants to take in plain sewing to earn a little money to help a sick husband along? I will give a nice braided rug, oval shape, size about 54x36 inches, in return for the machine, and will also do plain sewing for a few weeks, and I will pay express charges. I live not far from Taunton, Mass.

Out of Work

Editor Helping Hand:

My dear husband has been out of work mostly all Winter with colds and the grippe. Have worked hard myself, but am neglecting him and my child. Now, what I would like is there anyone who has a baby or child under five years old that they would pay to have it get the best of treatment and care and also a mother's love? I have only one of my own. I love children, and it would help me to forget some of my own worries.

Rent Strike in Glasgow

GLASGOW, Jan. 24.—House tenants in Glasgow have started a "no-rent" strike, and it is estimated that landlords are losing nearly five million dollars weekly in consequence.

The strike arises out of the Rent acts and a decision of the House of Lords. The Rent acts gave the landlords the power to increase their rents by 40 per cent. The House of Lords, however, said the imposition of the increase was illegal unless the tenant had first been given notice to quit.

Not one landlord in a hundred had given this notice. They merely put on the increase. And now the tenant have made up their minds to pay no more rent until the unlawful increases have been worked off.

This means that they propose to live rent-free for the next nine or twelve months.

RUSSIA WON'T STICK HER BAYONET IN THE RUHR MESS

By Herbert Kaufman

GERMANY would consent to a protectorate—meaning America. Declined without thanks. "The wars and hates of Europe's States are not for us to share." Indirect consequences are all that our tax-frayed nerves can stand. The flag's home to stay. Count on that.

Even Lenine wants none of this mad snarl. Krassin, his London mouthpiece, announced that sympathy, not succor, is the most that Berlin may expect from Russia. Which is somewhat reassuring.

A Straitjacket for the Mark

Meanwhile, the boil on the Ruhr has not yet found a poultice. Italy's mediation offer is rejected. Cuno demands that France must withdraw her troops. Germany will sit at no council table except with all the allies.

Mussolini continues to fish for bottom. He has wired his Berlin man to ascertain the most that France can expect by way of cash settlement.

France, at his instance, now offers a partial moratorium, providing Germany accept the Reparation Commission's plan and ceases to resist occupancy in districts designated by the Versailles treaty.

The German industrial chiefs must first guarantee a three billion gold mark interior loan, half a billion of which will be used to stabilize the mark, whose frantic behavior certainly demands a straitjacket.

Vaccination Against Weltmacht

Our money goes crazy, too, when it crosses the Rhine. A fifty-room castle, all furnished, with fifteen acres of grounds, is advertised for a thousand dollars. A six-flat apartment house just sold for sixty-five dollars.

That ought to be vaccination against Weltmacht. Such are the dregs of pottage for which the most prosperous and efficient people of modern times traded their vast estate.

Herr Hohenzollern, strolling the grounds of his cozy villa at Amerongen, evidently does not find Holland the Elbe it seemed to be.

An Ace in the Hole

Germany is not recommended to intending tourists for the present. Panic and despair are dangerous hosts.

News comes of demonstrations against sojourning Britains. "Gott strafe England" is on the lip once more. And even our own travelers now walk through frowns and mutters. Prussian newspapers rowdily berate Washington for sidestepping the forbidding puddle.

Rumors again warn of hidden arms and drilling groups. Riots loom in the foreground. But Germany is not equipped to clear her frontiers. Her teeth are drawn and France can stamp her to pulp before new fangs may grow.

The one possible ace in the hole is some incredible horror snarling in chemistry's arsenal. One kindly soul has already suggested cholera germs for invaders.

Earthquake Shocks and Others

Nature, not to be outdone by human nature, also tried to make a muss yesterday. An earthquake shocked northern California, stopped a few clocks and quit. Sunday's papers produced a far worse shock with news of a million drug addicts in the United States.

Hearst's International, on trail of the abominable traffic, says that we lead all lands in the use of narcotics and warns of impending consequences beyond the experience of man. Cholera germs are still to be met with, but cocaine, morphine and wood alcohol have already attacked the citadels of national morality.

China, slave of the poppy, devitalized, incompetent and content in her squalor and helplessness, is not an inspiring vision of what America can become if we do not snatch our women and children and Wally Reids from the slathering jaws of jackal habits.

Three Million New Home Sites

But all the future is not so forboding. Four million gaunt, useless acres will soon slake their desert thirst. The greatest irrigation project in all history is about to begin.

The Colorado River basin, now a total waste, promises by the concerted action of seven States, to bring three million new home sites to America and furnish many Niagaras of energy for mid-continental manufacturing.

Progress is hampered by wars, never halted by them.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON THE UNDER SEA TUNNEL

Future Mastery of the Air Would Make One Improbable and Unnecessary

By Garrett P. Serviss

"Considering the feats of our present-day engineers, do you consider it probable for a tunnel to be built under the ocean to Europe? Is it possible?—Louis Acutari, New York."

I DO not think it probable that a tunnel will ever be built under the Atlantic Ocean, between America and Europe. I will not affirm that the feat might not, at some time be accomplished in spite of its evident impossibility with our present means, but I believe that long before we should be in a position to essay it the way of the air will have been so completely mastered that there would be no incentive to attempt a tunnel.

I will, however, venture to suggest that if such a tunnel ever were constructed, it would resemble an ocean cable in that it would lie on the sea bottom, instead of penetrating the rocks beneath. It would, in short, be a tube, lowered down from the surface, and depending for its stability partly on secure anchoring, but mainly on the quiescence of the deep water. But the difficulties would be so great that very likely there is not a living engineer who would deem the undertaking possible, even with the assumption of a ten-fold increase in our mechanical powers.

The larger part of the tunnel tube would have to be submerged to a depth of a couple of miles at least. Now, two miles down the pressure of the water would be more than two tons to the square inch, and the problem of making the tube strong enough to bear such a pressure would have to be safely solved.

If we imagine the attempt made, no doubt the first tube tried would be one of small diameter and thick walls, designed after the manner of a pneumatic tube, to carry small articles by means of gaseous pressure or "suction."

The fact that all this is simply Jules Verne's way of looking at the future may be deemed rather encouraging than otherwise, for there is hardly an idea that that wonderful Frenchman worked out in his ingenious fictions that the present generation has not seen substantially realized. If he did not set one of his all-conquering engineers to drive a tunnel under the sea, at least he described a natural tunnel running from the volcanic vents of Iceland to those of the Mediterranean Sea. Although he did not quite foresee the airplane, he showed a way to get to the moon which Professor Goddard's repeating rocket may one day follow.
